Livermore's schools eye big windfall

Livermore's Unified School District may have hit a $100,000 jackpot after three years of negotiating with the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) to compensate for lost property taxes.

According to ERDA spokesman Hank Bowden, funds totaling $108,842.93 will be "given" to the school district in lieu of property taxes not collected from federal land occupied by Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, Site 300, and Sandia Laboratory.

The school district's Assistant Superintendent for Business Bruce W. Jamieson said that the proposal will be brought before the board Tuesday evening.

The Atomic Energy Act of 1954 gave ERDA authority to render financial not assistance to counties where taxes were not collected on federal property.

Board member James T. Davis was the one responsible for bringing the specific section of the 1954 act to the attention of the board.

"Under our state formulas for providing assistance," Jamieson said, "if we receive &100,000 in lieu of taxes this coming year it will not be reported to the state until the end of the fiscal year. The State will then decrease its apportionment by 50 per cent of the total received the following year."

Bowden said, "ERDA is going to give the city what the taxes were worth back to 1950." This means that retroactive payment based on assessed value of the unimproved property would equal $70,810.85 according to ERDA's figures.

Even though complete assessement records on LLL property were not available, ERDA's San Francisco office was able to obtain a copy of the tax bill during 1940-41 from the owner of 629 acres at that time.

"To arrive at what would have been the assessed evaluation for the property in 1950," Bowden said, "an escalation of 45.2 per cent was used based upon an analysis performed by an independent consultant."

The acreage involved is broken down into 631 acres for LLL; 704 acres representing site 300; and 161 acres for Sandia.

In addition to the retroactive payment, ERDA will pay the district $38,032.08 for property taxes lost during the 1976-77 school year ending June 30.

Bowden said this sum was determined by a rate of $5.85 per hundred dollars of the assessed valuation. The current assessment of the subject properties totaled $650,504.75.

"Mopefully the signing of the actual document will take place this week," Bowden said. "The actual payment would not come for a couple weeks."

Donald Reardon, acting manager for ERDA's San Francisco Office will be signing the contract for the Government and Superintendent of Schools Leo Croce will represent the School District.

Highway 680 crash

SAN RAMON — The charred remains of a truck trailer rig were finally dragged off southbound Highway 680 early Saturday morning, nearly eight hours after the rig blew up and spread a wave of diesel fuel across three lanes of traffic.

Two of the traffic lanes were finally cleared shortly after midnight, but highway patrolmen say traffic didn't return to normal until about 3:30 a.m. when the third lane was finally cleared.

Minor injuries were suffered by the driver, Glendensee Speed of Reno, Nevada, who leaped from his tilting cab moments after the rear of the rig became engulfed in flames.

No other injuries were reported, said the California Highway Patrol.

The truck blew out a left front tire which caused the heavy vehicle to swerve from the far left lane into a guard rail near Pine Valley Road in San Ramon, the CHP reported.

Gas spewed across the highway and flames from the truck ignited the fuel, sending a huge black cloud over the highway.

Southbound traffic was diverted onto the San Ramon Valley Road by way of the Crow Canyon Road off ramp. Traffic trapped between the wreckage and the nearest off ramp were allowed to pass in the far right lane.

County fair's big opening set for noon

The 65th edition of the Alameda County Fair may come to be known as "the fair with the mostest."

Mostest attractions and people!

When The Flag is raised at noon today to signal opening of the annual two-week country party, fair-goers will be viewing a contemporary phoenix that has risen from the ashes of strike and discontent.

There is every indication that before the exhibit halls are closed and the carnival torn down on July 10, upwards of half-a-million persons will have trooped through the gates of the Pleasanton fairgrounds.

A full day of special attractions, exhibits and stage shows will greet fair viewers today.

Admission is $2 for adults and 50 cents for children ages 6-15. The first of the half-price "Family Nights" is scheduled Monday with reduced prices in affect from 5 p.m. on. Other half-price nights are June 28 and 29, July 5, 6 and 10.

Patrons are urged to use any one of the main parking areas on the Fairgrounds or those on Bernal Avenue near the railroad tracks. The primary entrance and exit roadway to the Fair will again be Bernal.

Foley and Burk Shows again operates the carnival, which will be open daily until at least 10 p.m.

The horse racing meet, cancelled because of a county employes strike and picketing last summer, begins a 12-day run Monday with first post at 1:30 p.m.

Racing director Everett Nevin reported 10 entries for the first race, featuring Appaloosas, on Monday. There are nine entries for the quarter horse or third race on the program.

Nevin said their is a good chance the Pleasanton facility will average $1 million per day handle. In 1975, the track averaged $985,716 in parimutuel wagering.

Added this year are 14 more sellers windows, six cashier windows, and a revised paddock area with more room for horses to be paraded in.

By early Saturday, some 600 horses were stabled at Pleasanton in preparation for one of the major fair racing meets in the western United States.

Illustrative of the track's drawing power is the size of the work force at the track. Nevin said 155 are employed in the pari-mutuel section on weekdays with that number rising to almost 190 on Saturdays and the

Parking fees could double in Livermore

LIVERMORE — Possible huge increases in parking assessments may be too big a pill for downtown merchants to swallow, but city council Monday will consider almost doubling the current fees.

The city now pays realtor John Regan and other owners of the First Street merchants' parking lot near the courthouse $616 a month rental. The lease expires in September and the city has been informed the new lease will cost $1,368 per month.

Some of the money comes from Alameda County because the parking lot is also used for the Livermore Municipal Court, but the vast majority of the rental money comes from a surcharge placed on top of the business license tax paid annually by merchants along a two block stretch of First Street and parts of J and K streets.

Depending on how close a business is to the lot, the surcharge is anywhere from 58 to 134 per cent of the business license tax. Proposed increases would boost those figures to a 121-246 per cent spread.

In dollars and cents, according to City Finance Director George Nolan, that could cost each merchant anywhere between $50 and $200 a year. He said fluctuations are caused by credits when businesses provide their own off street parking and the amount of business tax they pay.

The merchants aren't exactly happy with the pending increase, according to a spot survey taken by The Times yesterday.

Many complained their customers can never find parking in the lot because it is crowded with people from the courthouse.

Waste water reclamation

How many people have drunk the water you consume every day?

Only 1 per cent of the water on earth is fresh and available for consumption. It is the same water that has been here since life began — and it's been around.

Debate is raging on whether the use of treated wastewater is safe, whether by direct consumption, sprayed on crops or placed in underground reservoirs for future use.

Full summer recreation

Recreation departments in Pleasanton and Dublin-San Ramon have announced a full schedule of summer events and classes for residents of all ages. For VCSD programs, see pg. 3, for Pleasanton, pg. 6.

SRV schools ponder vote

Another San Ramon school bond election would be futile prior to 1979, district administrators have reported to the board of trustees.

After failing to pass a bond measure May 31, it will take at least that long before the district can go back to voters without suffering a 'credibility gap,' it was reported.

Administration advice to the board emphasized that no vote should be taken until the rapidly - crowding district is forced to employ double session for classes. For details, see page 4.

Pleasanton council eyes pipe protest

PLEASANTON — The CARD referendum to force another ballot measure out of the LAVWMA cross-Valley pipeline is expected to draw some fire, but no resolution at tomorrow night's city council meeting.

Mayor Robert Philcox told The Times he expects the council will listen to legal advice from city attorney Ken Scheidig, but make no move until after the 2,171 signatures on the petition are verified.

The city has 30 days to certify the signatures.

The council can either rule the referendum an improper ballot measure, cast the decision to voters, or rescind its earlier LAVWMA amendment.

The city drew CARD's wrath when it voted to amend the Livermore Amador Valley Water Management Agency joint powers agreement and authorize the sale of up to $8.5 million in construction bonds for the $38 million "super sewer" pipeline.

The state and federal governments will pay up to 87.5 per cent of the bill.

Voters in Dublin and Livermore defeated the measure when it appeared on the ballot in November. It passed only in Pleasanton.

Philcox said the council probably will look at the petition in July.

Lab bargaining bill holds until August

SACRAMENTO — A bill to extend collective bargaining rights to employes of the University of California, including the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, passed the full Assembly Thursday.

The measure now heads to the Senate, which will take up the issue when it reconvenes in August following the summer recess.

The bill has the support of local Assembly Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton).

Sponsored by Assembly majority floor leader Howard Berman (D-Los Angeles), the measure would cover all employes of the California State University and Colleges, as well as UC.

Unions, secret elections and fact-finding panels would replace the current meet and confer method, which is not binding on management.

A Senate committee will receive the bill first. A spokesman for Berman's office said it would be either the Education or Governmental Organization committee.

The Assembly vote was 56-14. Last week's vote by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee was 11-7 in favor, with one abstention and two absent.

Dublin sales hit $80.7 million

George T. Babbit would have loved living in Dublin and statistics just released by the Alameda County Planning Department prove it.

The patron saint of American merchants would be happy to know that despite its relatively small population of 17,000, Dublin leads the Valley by a big margin in dollar sales per resident and misses by a cashbox in overcoming the sales total in Livermore, with its 50,000 folks.

Dublin merchants sold $80.7 million worth of goods in 1976, a 62.9 per cent increase over the last reported period two years earlier.

That was just behind Livermore's $80.8 million in 1976, an amazing contrast when one considers that Dublin has one - third the population.

And where are people spending the money? On booze, for one thing.

Liquor stores in Dublin did $6.5 million worth of business in 1976, compared to $2.3 million for Livermore and $2.06 million for Pleasanton.

Not all the hooch went to Dublin residents, though. Dublin is handy to the northern area of Pleasanton and it figures the fairgrounds city helped out a lot.

Livermore ranks first in sales at eating and drinking places, beating Dublin $8.5 million to $5.8 million. But on a per capita basis, Dublin sold more edibles. Pleasanton, moved $4.9 million worth of viands.

In the area of drugs, general merchandise and building materials — three products which sell regionally — Dublin really cleaned up, pushing $25.5 million, more than twice the sales seen in Livermore.

Fair time again

Rows of colorful banners welcome the expected crowds for today's opening of the annual Alameda County Fair in Pleasanton. Weeks of preparation and hard work, right, preceded the official noon opening and it is expected that some half-million people will visit the always popular "family fune extravaganza before it closes July 10. Thousands will flock to the horseracing events, Monday through Saturday, in the grandstand. This major fair attraction was cancelled last year because of labor problems.

Council's critic jailed by police

LIVERMORE — Paul Tull, who wäs recently escorted by police from a city council hearing, once again has caught the attention of law enforcement officials.

This time he went to jail for refusing to sign a citation charging him with driving "too slow" and possessing more than one driver's license.

Tull, the leader of a recall movement against city officials. was arrested Friday evening by the same two officers who physically ousted him from the city council hearing.

Officer Barry Foye and Reserve Officer Tom Harris pulled Tull over about 10 p.m. Friday for driving five miles-an-hour in the left hand lane on East Avenue. After examining the situation, Foye and Harris decided to cite Tull for possesion of more than one driver's license.

When he refused to sign the citation, the officers impounded his car and took him to the Livermore Police station.

According to Police Chief Ron Lindgren, there was no other option left but to detain Tull.

"I didn't know where my husband was until he phoned at 11:20," Tull's wife, Sally told The Times.

"He spent the night in the drunk tank," she said, "dressed in his shorts for the daytime heat."

At 8 a.m. Saturday, Tull called his wife and said he had a soggy pancake for breakfast and that he was going to be sent to the Santa Rita jail.

According to Sally Tull, he would not sign to be released on his own recognizance because he claimed to be innocent of all charges.

Tull will be arraigned tomorrow at Livermore Municipal Court.

Youths hurt in car crash

Three Pleasanton youths were flipped from an open four-wheel drive vehicle which tumbled over two or three times during noon hour traffic in front of Amador High School Friday.

Anthony Jones, 18, Mitchell Miller, 18, both graduates of Amador High School and Gary Walker, 21, all from Pleasanton, were riding in the vehicle, which was traveling north on a small side street parallel to Santa Rita Road when the accident occurred at 12:08 p.m.

Miller was placed in the intensive care unit at Valley Memorial Hospital with possible head injuries, according to a hospital spokeswoman. Jones has multiple cuts, and Walker sustained a fractured arm and leg, and possible head injuries. Both were transferred to Kaiser Hospital in Hayward Friday.

According to Sue Gainey of Pleasanton, the driver, Jones, was behind her on Santa Rita Road "and I guess he felt I wasn't going fast enough." Jones was "attempting to pass," she said, by taking a small street parallel to Santa Rita Road, directly in front of Amador High School.

"He yanked real hard to turn the thing (to the right) and it flipped over completely onto the street."

The driver, according to Rick Delucchi, 19, "just turned too sharp, bounced off the curb and went up and hit a tree." Delucchi estimated that the vehicle tumbled over "two or three times" and was traveling about 30 miles per hour when the accident occurred.

"We heard a loud noise, then we saw people falling out of the jeep," according to Denise McCulcheon, 16, of Pleasanton. The youths landed on the curbs and in the streets around the vehicle, and blood was spattered in the area, witnesses said.

VCSD faces sewage suit

DUBLIN — The Valley Community Services District (VCSD) may have to square off and do battle with the Alameda County Water District (ACWD) since the latter agency has formally filed a million dollar claim for damages against VCSD.

The claim was received by VCSD Wednesday. It stated, ..."Alameda County Water District has suffered and continues to suffer damages as a result of your illegal and improper discharge of effluent into ALamo Canal which then flows into Arroyo de la Laguna commingling with natural runoff from Alameda Creek. These discharges constitute a public nuisance in that they are injurious to health and are indecent or offensive to the senses. Your discharges began Circa 1961 and continues to date."

ACWD officials stated damages included but were not limited to the cost of importing and percolating water to minimize contamination and pollution of Niles Basin. The cost of purchasing such water for importation was also mentioned as a cause for damage claims.

ACWD further maintained the cost of monitoring and overseeing effluent discharge to protect health and welfare of residents in their district was another cause for complaint.

The claimants said they were uncertain if $1 million would be a sufficient amount to cover damages.

Some VCSD officials said they think the claim is unjust since they have been caught in the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) squabble over where and what size a proposed pipeline will be built. Until that issue e is resolved, VCSD spokesmen said they could see no other alternative to solving the ACWD problem at this time.

the Fourth of July.

Another 119 are employed in the grandstand area, 94 on the outside gates and 43 in security, guard and watchman positions. Nevin has also ordered 7,500 race programs for opening day.

With special charters from throughout the Bay Area, improved public transportation within the Valley and easy access to freeways leading from Santa Clara, Contra Costa, San Joaquin and San Francisco counties, week day crowds of at least 7,000 are expected.

Total attendance in '75 topped 433,000, or an average of 28,000 per day.

Among the daily features will be the strolling bands, and special attractions such as Jonny Rivers' high-diving aqua-mules, Dick Harward's working border collies, the Mitchell Marionettes, Charlie Allen's Petting Zoo, and the antique farm equipment displays.

Harward's collies will perform at 1:30, 3:30 and 5:30 today in the livestock area. The Mitchell Marionettes will perform at 1, 3 and 5 in the lawn area.

The Pleasanton Community Band will give a concert in the park area at 6 p.m.

Gates to the Amphitheatre will open at 7 p.m. with the annual Maid of Alameda County Pageant commencing at 8:30 p.m. Julie Hemming of Pleasanton is the reigning Maid of Alameda County.

Among those participating will be Tanya Snel, Maid of Livermore; Rebecca Eveleth, Maid of Dublin, and Jori Alexander, Maid of Pleasanton.

The winner will represent the county at the annual Maid of California Pageant at Cal Expo in August.

First professional stage show of the Fair is scheduled Monday. Clay Hart and Sally Flynn, magician Chuck Jones and emcee Ben Wrigley will be featured at 7 and again at 9 both Monday and Tuesday.

Famed guitarist and singer Jose Feliciano will be here Wednesday and Thursday followed, each for two-day runs, by Skiles and Henderson, The Treniers, Freddy Fender, John Byner, and Shari Lewis and "Lamb Chop."

Today is Supervisors' Day at the Fair. Monday is Alameda and Newark Day. Friday, July 1 is Livermore Day at the Fair, July 6 is Pleasanton Day and July 8 is Dublin Day.

Gates open daily, except today, at 10 a.m. and close at 10 p.m. The carnival midway remains open past 10 at the discretion of the Fair management.

Allen probes BART salaries

Bob Allen, the BART director from the Valley who blew the whistle on the elaborate expense account practices of since - departed directors Elmer Cooper and Dick Clark, has been digging around in the financial records again.

This time he's after BART's apparently high - paid management. It isn't so much the $68,500 salary to BART's top executive, Frank Herringer. Allen already voted against his salary in April, 1975, when Herringer was hired. Herringer has been a good manager, but he's still not worth $68,500, or about $20,000 more than Governor Brown's salary, said Allen.

The focus of Allen's magnifying glass this time is a gaggle of upper executives whose ranks, Allen maintains, nearly has doubled in the past 21 months.

Back in July, 1975, there were 26 BART higherups making $27,222 or more annually. Adjusting that benchmark figure for inflation, today's equivalent would be $30,243 in April, 1977.

But did Allen find 26 executives making $30,243 or more this April? No. He found 47 of them at the adjusted figure.

That means the district hired or promoted 21 persons to that level. Allen doesn't dispute that BART needs good people to solve its well - publicized problems. He thinks too many of them have been hired and they are paid too much.

The other directors sat up and listened to Allen's contention and agreed to take a look at the salaries. The board also will pay a consultant $25,000 to study the salary schedule.

Sen. John Holmdahl of this district is sponsoring a bill to limit the salaries of BART executives. For example, Herringer's salary, now $68,500, would be tied to Governor Brown's salary, $41,000.

Allen thinks Holmdahl's bill is one way of approaching the high salary costs. But he doesn't like the state getting involved in what he thinks is a local problem. He hopes that the BART directors will be able to solve it themselves.

Council ponders boost in shops' assessments

"Even though the court helps pay, it doesn't help the parking situation," said Pat Brosnan of Dutro's Barber Shop. "If the city acquired the lot the same problem would still exist."

Acquisition is another alternative to be considered by council Monday. City Manager Bill Parness will ask council to authorize a preliminary appraisal of the property for a prospective purchasing assessment district.

City Attorney Gary Reiners said only one firm quoted a price for the appraisal — ranging from $1,500 to $2,000.

"The city should just buy it," said Linda Galas of Proctor's. "The city needs parking badly and the only way to insure it now and in the future is to buy the land to put the parking on."

Complaining about the growing parking problem, Brosnan said many people who can't find off street parking wind up getting tickets for overtime parking at meters. "Instead of spending money on mini parks they should develop parking areas."

One clerk in a clothing store merely gulped when she heard about the prospective rate increase.

Nolan wants council action in time to call a hearing two weeks from now, because July is when the business license taxes are due and he would have to recompute them.

An employe of Fredrick and Charles Beauty College said half her customers couldn't find space in the parking lot, blaming people who park their cars in the lot all day while taking the BART feeder busses to another destination.

Watershed proposal approved

By BARBARA COHEN
Times Staff Writer

DANVILLE — If and when big rains hit the San Ramon Valley, instead of hurriedly building an ark, residents may be able to seek assurance in retention basins.

Certainly not as exciting, but more reliable than an ark, these ponds are part of a proposed flood control project designed to protect the valley in the event of a "100-year flood."

The massive project, for Zone 3B of the San Ramon Watershed, was approved this week, 4-1, by the advisory committee to the Contra Costa County Flood Control District.

Helen Verzani of Walnut Creek cast the dissenting vote.

The project, which will be years in the making, is estimated to cost $9.4 million.

The plan calls for channel improvements at selected locations construction of, water retention ponds along San Ramon, Green Valley and Sycamore creeks. If approved by the county Board of Supervisors, the plan would be the first large-scale revision flood control projects for the 50-square-mile watershed since the adoption of the original proposal 23 years ago.

The plan, which is incorporated in the San Ramon Watershed report, has been in the works for a year and has been the subject of several stormy public hearings at which residents and property owners voiced suggestions, fears, dislike or approval depending on how they viewed the project.

Tuesday night was no exception.

Several developers whose properties could be jeapardized by the project pleaded with the committee to delay its vote until further alternatives could be considered.

Dana Murdoch, representing the Diablo Investment Co., a group of developers opposed to building a retention basin on their Blackhawk Road property, complained to the committee that his group had been left off the county mailing list and had not even learned about the report until two weeks ago.

He urged the board to postpone its decision until it could review a report currently being prepared by a privately hired hydrologist on possible alternative sites.

"You shouldn't vote on a study until you know what you're voting on," he said.

Whitegate subdivision developer Harold Smith, whose property has also been designated as a basin site, asked the committee to put up another $25,000 to study school playing fields and golf courses as potential alternative basin sites. The district has already spent $90,000 on the watershed study.

Bobbi Meyer of Blackhawk Road spoke in favor of the project and the Blackhawk Road pond, saying the developers were asking to change the whole flood control project just to "suit their own needs."

Maurice Laymon, president of the Diablo Hacienda Homeowners Association, agreed by pointing out that "a number tonight are speaking for few people with selfish reasons. I'm talking for several hundred people." He urged the board to "get with it and get moving." Deleted from the plan approved by the committee were the Upper Green Valley Creek-South basin, and improvements to San Ramon Creek from Chaney Road to Entrada Verde Place, and Sycamore Creek upstream from Sycamore Valley Road.

The latter two projects will be presented again later after further studies and meetings with the area residents.

Before the plan is sent to the Board of Supervisors for action, the flood control district will check out the possible consequences to the many wells located within a half mile of the the proposed Lower Green Valley basin site on Diablo Road Milton Kubicek, county engineer, said the Board of Supervisors had hired soils consultants Harding and Lawson of Concord to investigate the possibility of wells drying up because of lower water tables resulting from construction of a retention basin.

Several residents have expressed concern about this issue at previous meetings.

Project would control floods

DANVILLE — Here is a look at the proposed Zone 3B flood control project for the San Ramon Watershed.

The project is designed to protect the lives and property of San Ramon Valley residents in the event of a "100-year flood" by building several water detention basins and improving selected creek channels to decrease or prevent severe overflow.

The basins would be built adjacent to the creeks to catch peak flows that would normally overflow in the creek banks downstream. These ponds would release the water back into the creeks 24 hours after the storm ends.

When completed, said county engineer Milton Kubicek, the approximately 15-acre basins should resemble natural grass and tree-lind meadows each with a stream running through the middle. Sides would slope gradually and blend into the surrounding landscape. This would allow use of the properties as open space or as recreation sites, Kubicek said.

The report also noted that the ponds would not have water in them regularly as many people believe. Preliminary calculations, it said, showed that water would enter them approximately once every five years, and they would only reach capacity once in 100 years.

The plan calls for four basins. These include: — Upper San Ramon Creek basin located in orchard land owned by the school district near Greenbrook and Paraiso drives.

— Lower Green Valley Creek Basin to be built opposite Green Valley School on the north side of Diablo Road.

— East Branch basin of Green Valley Creek, located south of Blackhawk Road opposite Mt. Diablo Scenic Boulevard.

— Upper Green Valley Creek basin situated on current orchard land of the Bryan property near the Whitegate subdivision.

A solution for Sycamore Creek has yet to be worked out with concerned residents.

According to the watershed study, several homes could be affected as a result of proposed channel improvements, but it points out that plans were drawn up to keep relocation at a minimum.

Cost of the project is currently estimated at $9.4 million but exclude adjustments for inflation or construction delays. Maintenance costs were also left out.

Project financing, said the study, would come primarily from county flood control property tax funds, which are currently set at 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Kubicek said the rate would probably fluctuate during the construction period, but can't go above the set maximum of 18 cents. For each one cent tax increase, the cost to the owner of an $80,000 home would be about $2 a year. Federal and state financing will also be sought.

No one knows exaactly when the project will start or be completed, although the study does contain tentative schedules based on 10 and 20-year programs.

But first priority, said Kubicek, is to buy the basin properties before the developers get in there and build houses.

Heroes

The lessons to be offered will be Beginners, Advanced Beginners, Intermediate and Swimmer skill level classes.

Highly qualified Water Safety Instructors will be conducting these classes with no more than eight students per instructor.

Many other morning and early afternoon lessons will be starting each of the remaining four sessions.

The specialty classes include synchronized swimming, competitive stroke, scuba diving and multi-skill level diving classes.

For further information on these and other aquatic programs, call 828-7711.

Taxable sales jump in county

For the first quarter of 1977 taxable sales in Contra Costa County jumped 36.8 per cent over the same period last year, according to the State Board of Equilization.

Transactions rose to $652,778, according to figures released recently.

In Concord, retail transactions for the first quarter totaled $90,924, bringing total transactions to $105,709.

Taxable sales in California for the first quarter registered the largest quarterly gain in more than 20 years except for the spring of 1973.

Taxable sales for that period topped $22.1 billion, 19.2 per cent or $3.5 billion more than in the first quarter of 1976.

This gain was the largest for any quarter since the economic recovery began in 1975 according to the board.

The physical volume of goods sold or used in the state increased by a record 12.5 per cent while price increases were limited to an average of 6.7 per cent.

Durables continued to display the greatest strength for the sixth consecutive quarter. Lumber and building material dealers registered a gain of 45 per cent on taxable transactions totaling $605 million.

New car dealers' sales jumped 30 per cent as they experienced their strongest growth in more than five years.

SR schools: let 'em taste double session

DANVILLE — The San Ramon Valley Unified School District administration has recommended to the district board that another bond issue be considered for March of 1979 as "a bond would be received favorably by parents only after their children have been on double sessions."

A $17.7 million lease-purchase bond issue was defeated by a 2 to 1 margin May 31. The bond would have provided monies for additions, new construction and purchase of school sites in fast-growing San Ramon district.

As part of an analysis of the election, the administration concludes that another bond vote should not be attempted before March of 1979.

The earliest the district could come back to the voters would be May of 1978. But a brief report to trustees comments, "Reassessment notices will arrive prior to the election and are apt to be substantially larger than the 5 per cent predicted this year — 1977. Double sessions will not have been implemented, therefore producing the same credibility gap we worked with this time."

As regards placing a bond issue on the November ballot, the analysis states, "Tax bills will arrive prior to the election. Double sessions will have been in session for only six weeks; not a sufficient amount of time for parents to realize its limitations."

But, by March of 1979, the analysis states, "Double sessions will have been a reality for almost a year; parents will be more responsive to the district's need for additional housing. A bond issue will be received favorably by the parents only after their children have been on double session. The longer the district is on double sessions the better the chances of passing a bond issue."

The district is giving strong consideration to a year-round schools pilot program. However, neither a pilot program or double sessions would commence prior to September of 1978. Superintendent Allan Petersdorf has said that double sessions are almost certain at some district schools if a bond issue is not approved by that time.

An advisory committee to further study the year-round school and double session options has been formed and is expected to meet initially later this summer.

Members of the panel and their home areas are as follows:

Bob Schepman, Diablo; Honey Pettigrew, Greenbrook; Joan Marsh, San Ramon Valley; Joan Kaufman, Montair; John Vasquez, Mt. Diablo; Lynette Irwin, Green Valley staff; Gayle Thompso, Walt Disney staff; Bud Lowery, Twin Creeks staff; Dr. James Solberg, district administration; Maureen Holcraft, Karen Stepper, Marty Sundeen, and Anita Heyman.

A precinct breakdown of the May 31 election was also presented at the last board meeting.

Of the 28 precincts in Danville, San Ramon, Alamo and Walnut Creek, just seven voted in favor of the lease-purchase issue. They included Danville Woods, Greenbrook, Shadown Mountain Court, Fountainhead in San Ramon, Milo Place in San Ramon, Davona Drive, and Country Club School.

The most lopsided "no" counts were recorded in three Rossmoor precincts in Walnut Creek. Precincts in Alamo and most in Danville also voted strongly against the issue.

Final vote count was 7,026 "no" and 3,540 "yes." There was a voter turnout of 10,568 or 40.2 per cent.

Offenders lack attention at home and school

Attention.

That's what juvenile law offenders don't often get at home or schools, though they need it, says Walter A. Brown, Jr., who is the chairperson of the state bar association's standing committee on juvenile justice.

Brown, a deputy district attorney in Alameda County since 1968, has been specializing in juvenile court since 1970.

Brown concedes that juvenile justice problems are frustrating and depressing, says a news release from the California State Bar, and the system often does not have much impact on children because they keep returning.

To Brown, though, his job gives the opportunity to "try to make the system have an effect on a child when he is at a critical stage in life, before it is too late."

"Many children get into trouble because they don't receive sufficient love or attention at home," said Brown.

"Children want people to notice them," said Brown, "and sometimes the lack of attention is why they get into trouble. Many children who test the system and are not punished for their acts become disappointed and confused and are more likely to test the system again."

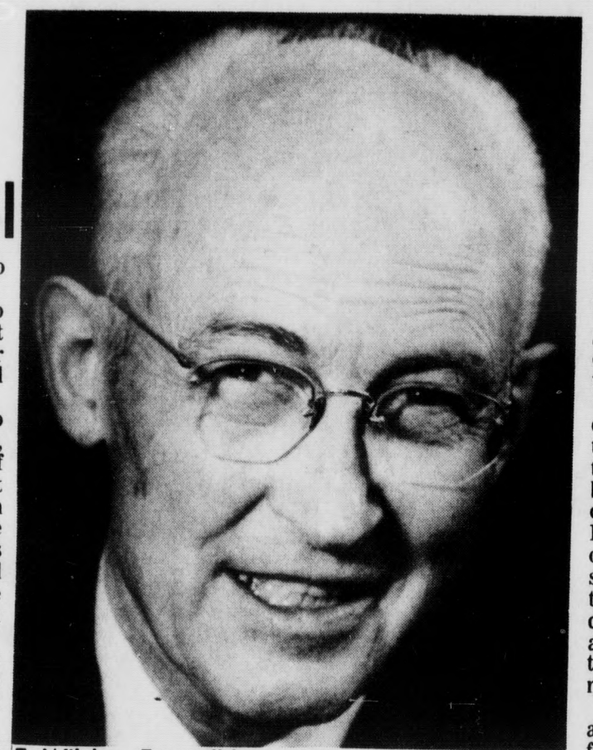
Brown thinks that some juvenile problems are also the result of learning and educational deficiencies.

"If a minor is a slow learner and, as a result, can't get the recognition usually obtained from school in a positive way, then he may choose another route."

Brown lives in Walnut Creek with his wife, JoAnn and their two children. His leisure activities include tennis, trout fishing, and singing "John Denver type" folks songs while accompanying himself on the guitar.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

If you've only got a minute to glance at a newspaper each morning before rushing off to work, then "The World at a Glance" on Page One of The Times is just for you.



F. Wilcken Fox will be retiring June 30 after over 31 years of service with the office of the Alameda County Superintendent of Schools. He began his career at the Alameda County School Department in 1946, and has served as research assistant, publications editor, coordinator of publications, administrative assistant, educational services assistant, and most recently as assistant director of personnel. Fox will be honored at a reception Wednesday, June 29 from 3 to 5 p.m. in Room 46 of the Alameda County Education Center, 685 A St., Hayward.

New Chabot class series opens soon in San Lorenzo

Beginning with the summer session, Chabot College will be offering a series of courses at the YWCA, 18651 Via Toledo in San Lorenzo, ranging from communication techniques to food storage.

The classes start Tuesday, June 28 and continue through July 12 from 12:30 to 3:20 p.m. Elteen Kirschbaum will teach a course on confident communication, Psychology 123-31, based on some of the new "assertive" communication techniques. This course is designed for people who are looking for more effective ways to express their needs.

Also beginning Tuesday and running three weeks from 9 to 11:50 a.m., Ms. Kirschbaum will teach a course in "self actualization," Psychology 146-31, which is designed to help develop one's fullest potential. Included with this course will be an introduction to various relaxation techniques for dealing with tensions experienced in life.

Two workshops on acting will be conducted by Mike Marsh. One is Drama 121-31, June 28-July 14 from 1 to 3:50 p.m., called "Little Theater Workshop," and Drama 30A-61, July 19-August 25, from 1 to 3:50 p.m., "Drama Workshop." Participants will represent a variety of acting levels, making either class perfect for beginners.

Consumer Education 124-62, "Food Storage and Preservation," a practical course on food storage, canning, freezing, drying, smoking, etc., plus increasing the nutritional value of food eaten, will be offered July 20 through August 24 from 1 to 3:50 p.m.

Low cost child care will be provided. Those needing child care or desiring information about the class should call Chabot College, 782-3000, ext. 494, or Iris Preece at the YWCA, 278-3180.

The Chabot College summer wind ensemble, directed by Elliott Charnow, will begin rehearsals Tuesday evening, June 28, at 7 p.m. in Room 1208 at the Hayward campus.

The band will rehearse each Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and will present aconcert of England band music at 8 p.m. Aug. 4 in the college auditorium.

Interested musicians may contact Charnow at 782-3000, ext. 311.

A new course in consumer education, "Self Medication," will be taught in a three weeks' program at Chabot College by pharmacist Carl Britto.

The class will meet on the Hayward campus from 9 to 11:50 a.m. beginning Tuesday, June 28 through July 14.

The course will help the student differentiate between conditions which can be safely self-treated, and those that need professional help.

Further information is available by calling 782-3000, ext. 450.

Parish schools see new hope for state aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a ruling that could mean millions of dollars in additional aid to Catholic and other parochial schools across the nation, made it easier Friday for states to help parochial pupils.

State aid for textbooks, textbook supplements and a range of educational services is allowable, the court said, but state aid for field trips and certain classroom equipment is not.

In ruling on each type of aid, the court based its decision on whether the aid benefited the parochial pupils, which the court said the Constitution allows, or their church-run schools, which the court said the Constitution prohibits.

The court did not stray from its previously decided three-prong test for judging the constitutionality of parochial aid: it must have a secular or nonreligious purpose, it cannot advance or inhibit religion, and it must not lead to an "excessive" entanglement by the government with religion.

The court's series of splintered opinions broke no new constitutional ground on the separation of church and state, but in essence told state legislatures how they might channel money to church-run schools without violating the Constitution.

The court upheld most aspects of an Ohio law calling for $88.8 million in state money going to private schools, most of them religiously affiliated, over a two-year period.

After the decision was handed down, David Young, a lawyer for the Ohio Catholic schools, said, "Needless to say, any approval by the Supreme Court comes as a welcome relief to the extent that without these remedial services, the children were suffering."

A lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union, which had opposed the Ohio laws, said, "It's very bad to see the court taking this very narrow view on the constitutional guarantees for civil liberties."

Specifically, the court said these types of state aid are constitutional:

— Textbooks and textbook supplements such as workbooks and manuals.

Actually, the court in 1968 ruled that non-religious textbooks could be loaned by states to pupils in elementary and secondary parochial schools but it expanded that Friday to include supplements.

— Academic testing services.

The justices said such standardized tests to measure the kind of job a school is doing in educating its pupils are allowable when the tests' contents are controlled by public school officials. "This serves to prevent the use of the test as a part of religious teaching and thus avoids ... direct aid to religion," the court said.

Livermore resident recalls horror of 1906 quake

Elizabeth Roberts

Elizabeth Volponi Roberts arrived in Livermore as a refugee from the great earthquake in San Francisco of April 1906.

She was 16 at the time, when she and her mother, Maria Volponi, and brothers Jene, Louis and Edward were allowed to ride the train, free of charge, to Livermore. And for 71 years she has remained in the town, contributing her energies and devotion to many worthwhile causes, and receiving in return many plaudits for her efforts.

But the dramatic event which brought the honored Livermore resident to this valley remains vivid in her mind. She remembers huddling in the third floor hallway of a tenement house, with her mother and brothers, early on that fateful April morning after being wakened by the quake.

"I ran up Telegraph Hill, and I saw San Francisco burning in three directions. It was terrible. The dead people were brought up from south of Market Street, those that had been crushed when buildings collapsed. I was down in Washington Square Park. I saw men, women and children lying there dead, with sheets over them. The fire was coming. All of the bodies must have burned up."

As the fire approached, she recalls, people were moved out. She and her family were evacuated to the Presidio where a tent city had been set up. They resided there until four days later, while the city was burned and dynamited in a desperate attempt to halt the flames.

The Volponis started their new life as refugees crowded onto a ferry, which made its way across the choppy waters of the bay to Oakland, leaving the once magnificent city behind. The family was allowed to take the train to Livermore, where they had relatives.

In previous years Elizabeth's father, Angelo, had worked with her brothers for Livermore's De Martini Company.

Later her father took on a job with a San Francisco scavenger company, driving a horse-drawn truck. Angelo died from injuries he received while trying to stop a team of runaway horses.

The fatherless family settled in Livermore in a house on O Street, next door to the home she and her husband now occupy 71 years later. Elizabeth recalls that as many as nine Volponi families resided in the small town in the old days.

Teenage Elizabeth went to work for Cresta Blanca Winery, formerly Wetmore Bowen Co., until it closed with the advent of prohibition.

"Cars were lined up for miles — people liked their wine!" describes Elizabeth, of the scene when the legislation went into effect.

From there Elizabeth went to managing a ladies and men's furnishings store. She later took over the management of another store, located where the Salvation Army Store is now, before leaving the business to marry Frank Roberts in 1935.

Her husband is also a survivor of the 1906 earthquake. "It's so vivid," recalls Frank. "The militia took over, and invoked martial law as the fire approached. They came here and cleaned everybody out. People from all over the city went by our house dragging trunks and bird cages. They took what they could."

The fire burned within one block of Frank's Mission district house, he says, adding, "I was just a kid. We were moved out, but a couple of kids and I sneaked back. I stood and watched the Notre Dame convent burn to the ground."

The boys were soon put to work, however, at a relief station by Mission High School. Bails of clothing and food were dumped out on the school grounds, where the Red Cross distributed them.

"They had us take coal, oil, sacks and rags over to the east side of Dolores Street for backfires," recalls Frank. "Dolores Street stopped the fire because it was so wide."

Frank, who built the Coast Rock and Gravel Company in 1924 and was a trouble shooter all over California for that company, came to Livermore in 1933 to build a plant for Calif. Rock and Gravel Co. A widower, it was a couple of years before he met Elizabeth through a mutual friend.

A community activist, Frank has been instrumental in the founding of several lodges and service organizations in Livermore, and was also on the City Council for eight years.

His wife, in turn, has been honored this month by the Native Daughters of the Golden West with a 50 year pin. It is just one of the many honors conferred upon her since she made Livermore her home.

Elizabeth has been chosen Woman of the Year by both the Eagles and the Business and Professional Women's Club. These honors came as a result of her tireless efforts on behalf of patients in convalescent homes, whom she has visited once or twice a week for 12 years.

She has also been a volunteer at the Veteran's Hospital library, and even provided sandwiches for the city's USO canteen during World War II.

But Mrs. Roberts says she is most proud of St. Michael's Church and school, where she has been actively involved for many years. Proud, she says, because she is still able — at 87 — to help raise money for both.

"I'm glad that I can still do it," she declares, pointing out that she will soon be 88. "With bad sight and bad hearing, it's hard — but I can still do it."

Minority women can now get job skills

Alameda County minority women over 45 can get out in the business world and obtain new job skills — with the help of a non-profit organization calld Project Abravar.

"Abravar," in Spanish, means to embrace, and according to workers at the center, the idea behind the project is to support and assist women who want to go back to work.

"We deal mainly with minority women over 45 years old," says Dolores Reta, a job developer at the center. Women who come to the center, she states, are placed with a non-profit organization, and paid a stipend of $2.50 per hour.

"Most of the jobs are in the human services fields," "And it doesn't matter whether a woman has had experience or not — we just try to give them a chance at trying a new job."

Project Abravar does have certain criteria before it is allowed to accept a woman for the program, according to Reta. A woman must be an Alameda County resident, minority, over 45 and "We give them a job with a stipend for four or five months," she says, "and then we try to have a higher paying job ready for them when they are through." Many women can go on to higher paying jobs after the initial experience.

To contact Project Abravar, a program funded by the Alameda County Training and Employment Board, contact Dolores Reta or Rose Cardinale at 583-1171. Women can make an appointment with a job counselor by calling, or by dropping by the office at 986 B St., Hayward.

AAUW has eight winners

The American Association of University Women's scholarship committee has selected eight award recipients for the 1977-78 years, chairwoman Mae S. Tilles has announced.

Of the eight selected, three students are being awarded their second AAUW scholarship. The winners are: Linda Mary Brownell of Holy Names College; Elizabeth Marie Kienzle of California Polytechnic University; Maricela Ayala Ordaz of University of California, Berkeley; Patricia Ann Kelly of California State University, Hayward; Nancy Potter of San Francisco State University; Lori Sinclair of California State University, Hayward; Lynne Ann Wilkinson of San Jose State University and Christine Ching Wong of California State University, Hayward.

All the recipients, who will get awards ranging from $100 to $400, are either local residents or a graduate of a local high school.

An annual AAUW book sale helpd raise the money for scholarship funds. Since the program began in 1965, $14,500 in scholarships has been awarded.

Special 4-H group believes in Good Times

There's a very special 4-H group in the valley, and they call themselves (appropriately) the Good Times club.

The group is the only one of its kind in Alameda County, according to one of the leaders, Alice Bruns — because it provides leadership and activities for mentally and physically handicapped persons.

"We've just completed our second year," says Mrs. Bruns, "and the word is getting around about the group."

The Good Times club has entered projects in this year's County Fair, and the 16 club members "have really been having a good time" working and learning together, she says.

Members range in age from their teens into their forties, according to Mrs. Bruns — but no matter what the age, all of them have worked throughout the year to put together some of the interesting things that can be see during fair days.

The group is shown here, celebrating at a recent pre-fair party held at the Bruns' Pleasanton home.

For more information on the club, call Mrs. Bruns at 846-2993.

Exhibition opens today

Chabot College students will exhibit their works, ranging from landscape to abstract art, at Warren Wade's gallery, 148 Ray St., Pleasanton, through July 2.

The exhibition opens Sunday, June 25 at the gallery, and Lynne Zickerman, who is a Chabot evening art instructor, plans to be on hand from 1 to 5 p.m. with some of the 20 student artists, to greet visitors and answer questions.

Pleasanton launches summer rec program

Instructor Pat Jorgensen passes would-be swimming student Delcea Wills a safety belt.

PLEASANTON — Summer fun begins this week courtesy of the city's park and recreation department.

Activities begin June 27 when the 1977 season "Mainstreet U.S.A." gets underway.

The first week of activity will include the movie "Dr. Doolittle," get acquainted activities, special crafts, including dying T-shirts, plus a generous round of games and sports.

A seven week program for youth is planned at the Lydiksen Elementary School, Donlon Middle School, Amador Park Recreation Building, Fairlands Elementary School, Valley View Elementary School and Komondorski Community Hall.

Activities will vary with each site, but the general schedule will be "open playground" every day, but excursion day from 1 to 5 p.m., excursion on Wednesdays, movies scheduled at each playground once a week.

Recreation staff suggest consulting the weekly flyers to be sure of the schedule for your playground.

"Open playground" will feature arts and crafts, table games, sports, low organized games and special events. Each playground will have two leaders to supervise activities.

Activities are scheduled on a "come and go" basis and it is not intended that children stay the entire period.

The first planned excursion will be to Marine World — Africa U.S.A. on Wednesday, July 6.

Participants must sign up at their playground, must pay and return their permission slips before they can go. No registration will be accepted at the bus or at the recreation department.

School buses will provide transportation.

Movies will be shown at Valley View on Monday, Donlon on Tuesday, Amador and Fairlands on Thursday, and Lydiksen on Friday. Please check with the playground for the time.

Parents are especially invited to visit the playgrounds, meet the leaders, and get complete information brochures on the first week.

For complete summer program information, please refer to the department's summer brochure.

Pleasanton's Park and Recreation staff will swing wide the door to summer fun this week. Pictured clockwise from the center top are Linda McMillan, Chris King, Bruce Ede, Kathy Scribner, Cindy Manildi, Nancy Ross, Dorothy Hardy, Ynez Rosales, Eileen Morley, Will Biggs, Phil and Mike Hansen.

Water rescue classes set

PLEASANTON — The city's Aquatic Center staff has scheduled both advanced lifesaving and basic rescue classes for the summer season.

The two-week classes will be held at Amador Pool from 2:30 to 4:40, Monday through Friday. The fee for city residents is $8.

Advanced lifesaving classes will begin June 27, July 25 and Aug. 22. Students must be at least 15 - years - old and be able to swim 500 continuous yards, surface, dive and tread water.

The course emphasis is on self rescue and the development of lifesaving skills. The course is a prerequisite for Water Safety Instructor classes.

Basic rescue will begin July 11 and Aug. 8. Students must be at least 11-years-old and be able to swim 250 continuous yards, float and tread water. Course emphasis is on personal safety.

Registration may be completed during recreational swimming hours, or on Monday or Friday, 9:30 to 12:30 at the Aquatic Center.

Ambulance firm seeks new home

Tri-Cities Ambulance, bounced from its old home on Guyson Court in the Val Vista tract, this week will ask city planning commissioners for permission to set up shop a mile away in Pleasanton Valley.

Planning commissioners will hear the firm's plea at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon in the city council chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

Neighbors complaints over traffic safety and noise drove the ambulance crew from its former home. Now they want to run their operation from 2297 Tanager Dr.

Save energy week tagged by mayor

PLEASANTON — Mayor Robert Philcox has signed a proclamation which designates this week (June 27 to July 10) as Energy Conservation Week.

According to the official document, the purpose of Energy Conservation Week is to draw public attention to the "growing problem of maintaining adequate energy supplies."

City Council decided there was much that the individual citizens of Pleasanton could do to conserve energy both at home and work.

Pacific Gas and Electric Company will have a Mobile Energy Conservation Center open free to the public which has a display of energy conservation materials, equipment, devices and appliances.

The Center was created by PG&E at the request of the Public Utilities Commission.

It will be open in Pleasanton tomorrow until Sunday, July 10.

Camping increased by 13 per cent and visitation rose one per cent in Missouri's state parks and historic sites in 1976, according to figures from the Department of Natural Resources, Division of Parks and Camping.

Camp Parks vet leaving the army

Col. Donald Larson of Pleasanton will retire from the Army at the end of July after 30 years of active duty. Currently he is Senior Advisor of the 91st U.S. Army Training Command at Camp Parks.

After his retirement, Col. Larson and his wife, Jo, will take a long awaited trip across the United States. They plan to fly in their own Cessna 170-B to each of the 48 continental states.

"We're going to take a small tent and a couple of sleeping bags," Col. Larson said, "and camp with the airplane as much as possible."

"We want to take a leisurely flight across the country and meet the people," he said. "We're going to avoid the big airports."

Larson enlisted in the Army in 1943 and served in Europe with the 82nd Airborne Division until January 1946.

After World War II he marched in the victory parade through the streets of New York City. An estimated 5 million people attended the historic ticker-tape event.

Larson was then discharged from the service and attended San Jose State College from 1946 until 1950 majoring in law enforcement.

Being in ROTC, he was commissioned in the regular Army on the day before the Korean War.

He was immediately sent to Korea as an infantry platoon leader. He served there from July 1950 until May 1951.

City views new budget

Page Binkley's attempt to build condominiums on Black Avenue and Hopyard Road, and his subsequent fight over parking, faces Pleasanton City Council members tomorrow night when they meet at 8 p.m. in the council chambers, 30 W. Angela St.

The council will also consider recommendations on the proposed 1977-78 city budget, as well as winter use of the Aquatic Center.

Planning staff is asking the council to put off a decision on a proposed 53-acre Planned Unit Development on a hill overlooking Sunol Boulevard.

Reflect

Reflections, one of Pleasanton's newest womens ready-to-wear shops, held grand opening ceremonies recently. Co-owned by (left, in mirror) Sherry Cullop and Rita Mara, the clothing shop will be open from 9:30 to 5:30 Monday through Saturday. The store, located at 1723 Santa Rita Road in the Amador Shopping Center, features nationally known brands of womens wear including Koret of California and Catalina. Also on hand for the opening ceremonies are were Jori Alexander, Maid of Pleasanton, Mayor Robert Philcox and John Weisser, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Zone 7 recently banned any additional spray irrigation of reclaimed water until its effect on the underground can be determined. Other questions remain.

Drought spawns new focus on water reclamation idea

An ever - shortening water supply, coupled with a $38 million price tag for the proposed Valley sewage export pipeline, brings about an obvious uncertainty:

Are we wasting a valuable resource by not reclaiming and reusing wastewater?

Experts appear divided on the issue, due mainly to a lack of technical knowledge on the health and economic consequences of reclamation.

The demand for water in the Bay Area is expected to match the supply by the end of this century. And we are in a better position than many communities.

Present technology can produce clear, odorless and tasteless water from wastewater while exceeding safe drinking water standards. Such water is being used in some areas of the world with no apparent harm to the users.

But researchers are unsure of the long-term effects of consumption due to very small amounts of organic materials that treatment procedures cannot remove. In short, direct consumption of treated wastewater will not be permitted until experts are 100 per cent sure that no ill effects will result.

There are other potential applications for reclaimed wastewater, however. Firefighting, irrigation for agriculture or landscaping, coolants for nuclear power plant reactors, recreational lakes, recharging groundwater reserves, or a residential supply for non-consumptive uses such as flushing toliets — all could theoretically use reclaimed water. But is it practical?

All alternative usage proposals have their drawbacks, again in either health or economic terms. Water must be softened so it won't encrust pipes; those unknown, minute organics might accumulate in crops or the groundwater; and a secondary, non-potable water source in residential areas could be mistakenly consumed.

Additionally, salt continually accumulates in water during reuse. This is a universal problem whether the intent is for drinking, cooling or irrigation — it cannot be tolerated.

Desalinization is technically possible but prohibitively expensive. It would cost an estimated $700 to remove the salt from one acre-foot (326,000 gallons) of water. By contrast, an acre-foot of water supplied by the East Bay Municipal Utilities District costs $130.

There are 357 reclamation plants currently operating in the nation, 80 per cent of which are located in California and Texas. Sixty ppr cent of the product is used to irrigate agricultural land, with the remaining 40 per cent consumed by industry in cooling or cleaning.

Spray irrigation of wastewater is limited to crops not consumed by humans. This includes feed for animals which may later be consumed by humans.

Agricultural irrigation is seasonal, while the production of wastewater is constant. Therefore, costly reservoirs would have to be constructed for wastewater produced during the wet weather months, September through May.

Wastewater can also be used to "recharge" the underground supply of water, such as done here in the Valley. The water table has risen several feet since Zone 7 of the Flood Control and Water Conservation District began its recharge system (using fresh treated water) several years ago.

By allowing wastewater to accumulate in ponds and slowly filter through soil, the underground water supply can be increased in a near-natural fashion. Another method is direct injection into the underground, although the filtration effect is lost.

There is currently heated debate within the Valley as to whether spray irrigation of wastewater leads to a build-up of nitrates or phosphates in the underground aquifers. Zone 7 this month outlawed any additional wastewater irrigation until its effects can be proven harmless.

In January, the state announced it was making available grants for communities to study reclamation/reuse alternatives. Local officials have actively pursued making use of that offer, and some expect a study to be completed this year.

Only three per cent of the earth's 360 cubic miles of water is fresh — two per cent is locked in icebergs or glaciers. Man, animals and plants have been living on that finite one per cent supply of water since life was formed. But the rapid population growth and proportional rise in industry and agricultural is placing a strain upon it that may not be tolerated.

Some have termed the plan to dump wastewater into San Francisco Bay "completely wasteful." Others say it is the only safe and economically feasible alternative.

Valley Community Services District (VCSD) Directors Ann Jolley, left, and Lila Euler join Waide Egener and Tom Findleton at Athan Downs Park in San Ramon to see how the new non-potable water-well system works. All of them approved, they said. Egener is VCSD Parks Facilities Coordinator. Findleton is VCSD Civil Engineering Assistant.

Well to save park's turf

SAN RAMON — The 20 acres of grass at Athan Downs Park in San Ramon will be staying green thanks to a water-well that gushes out 300 gallons per minute.

The water is non-potable according to Valley Community Services District (VCSD) public works and parks officials. Non-potable means it is unfit for drinking. VCSD sponsored construction of the park.

The well is known as the Toby Road Well. It is located on the Athan Downs property. A nearby farmer and Shappell Development Company share the water.

Waide Egener and Tom Findleton, VCSD parks representatives, pointed out that the newly-planted grass at Athan Downs has to be heavily watered until its root system is more firmly entrenched. They indicated should the grass roots be stabilized by mid-July.

Egener said keeping the grass alive was a way to protect taxpayers investment in the park project.

He also indicated it would be better for the grass if there wasn't too much activity at the park until the grass roots had more time to "take hold."

Doug Nelson, VCSD Director of Public Works, said the water-well project at Athan Downs was only a part of VCSD's efforts to conserve water.

VCSD is also planning to water Boone Acres Park and Dublin Sports Grounds with well-water. Since the well at Boone Acres hasn't yet produced enough water to make its use feasible, alternate plans are being explored.

Rare view of The People's Republic

The 23 day California Newspaper Publisher's Association trip to the People's Republic of China (Mainland China) cannot be fully described. It was incredibly fantastic. Even the veteran travelers of the group, who have been most places in the world, agree that it was the trip of a lifetime.

China is no longer a mystery to the 18 members and associates of CNPA who spent 23 days in China. To them, China is also no longer enchanting and romantic.

While 23 days (May 25 to June 16, both inclusive) does not make one an expert on any subject or country, these 23 days were crammed with 40 briefings and interviews, covering top national figures, provincial leaders and local functionaries at the grass roots level of communes, factories, handicraft works, apartment and housing complexes, etc. In 23 days we saw, heard and met more than an ordinary tourist would see or hear in a lifetime.

Well, then what did we see, what did we hear and what did we learn, you will ask. The answers to these simple queries will be long and complex. The answers will vary depending on the background, the social and political philosophy of the one giving those answers. In various sessions, we agreed on many conclusions and disagreed on others.

So, what I present now are my personal observations from my background of an attorney, trained to observe, inquire and analyze. Added to that is 39 years of newspaper publishing in several diverse areas of California, the San Joaquin Valley and East Bay. Politically, I am a middle - of - the road Republican, conservative on fiscal matters and liberal on protecting personal rights. With that in mind, here are my observations, conclusions and inconclusions..

China is a huge country with vast natural resources. It has a population of about 930,000,000 people according to the best American calculations given us by several U.S. agencies. The Chinese figure of 800,000,000 was given in 1974 at an international meeting on world population problems. The Chinese quickly jumped from 700,000,000 to 800,000,000 in a few months, showing that they have no substantial basis for the 800,000,000 figure they still give.

Chinese statistics are not too reliable. Our country checks constantly with its trading partners to arrive at mutually agreeable figures on any phase of the Chinese economy.

In 1949, the Communist Party of China under Chairman Mao Tse Tung "liberated" China. All figures given by any arm of the government at any level refers to the increases or gains made "since liberation." Thus a factory will tell you that its output per month now is 8 times that before liberation. It does not give the output now or the output then. So, this sort of report provides little reliable information until the output before 1949 is determined by research, a difficult task.

One must keep in mind that China was fighting a Japanese invasion for years prior to the civil war in China between the Communists under Mao and the Comintern party under Chiang Kai-Shek. So, any production figures prior to October, 1949, were made during war time. Thus, it should be easy for China to produce infinitely more now after 28 years of peace than it did during those war years.

This does not minimize the tremendous effort all over China to produce more. This is the battle cry posted everywhere, proclaimed hourly over loud speakers and made the theme at every meeting. The pressure is intense and inescapable.

With such a nationwide drive on, how is China really doing? Better — by their own meager standards of the past, and miserably — by our modern technical measurements. This baffling conclusion requires explanation.

The reason stems from the many quotations of Chairman Mao — who died in August, 1976. He was a founder of the Communist Party, a dedicated Marxist and the leader of the Revolution. He is literally worshipped as a God and his sayings (writings) are the only religion the Chinese practice today. Whatever Mao said must be observed and practiced, with devotion and without deviation.

Emphasis is placed on Mao's proclamation of self reliance. The Chinese must rely on themselves, their efforts, their ingenuity, to solve all problems and move by their own bootstraps into an industrial nation.

The result is that the Chinese literally refuse to accept technical advise from companies and persons who are acknowledged to be experts in these fields. The Chinese may spend millions on new plants built by foreigners and then refuse to follow advice and instructions on how to operate and maintain these plants. This self - reliance attitude means that the plants soon fail to function properly and become somewhat useless.

A striking example is the development of the huge new Shengli (Victor) oil field which the Chinese were so proud to show us. Drilling is done by self reliance in a crude manner. The wells are not cemented and so sand is sucked up with the oil and the pipes become clogged with sand. American and Canadian expert drillers are paid handsomely to advise the Chinese but they refuse to follow the advice. A half dozen such oil engineers we bumped into deplored the situation. All said the field was tremendous in size and in the reservoir of oil. They all agreed that it would never be developed properly by the Chinese going it alone.

We were all amazed at how primitive the operations were in this field. From the figures given us, an analysis of mine showed that over 4,000 wells have been drilled and only half of them are operating. Those not operating all have ample oil but have mechanical and drilling defects.

One company is building eight large fertilizer plants over a 5 year period. By the time the last plant is completed, the first two will be a shambles because of refusal of the Chinese to follow maintenance and operating rules and procedure laid down.

My conclusion is that Mao's self - reliance will hold back China's development of its huge natural resources into a first rate industrial power for 50 to 100 years. Manpower alone, however diligent and dedicated, cannot produce an industrial economy without technical education, knowledge and experience to guide that manpower. This self - reliance seems to be China's major problem which will be difficult to surmount until they add acceptance of technical skill to their blind belief that all problems can be solved by self - reliance.

Fourth of July gas up two cents from '76

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fourth of July motorists in Northern and Central California and in Nevada will be paying about two cents more per gallon of gas than they did during last year's holiday weekend, the California State Automobile Association said Friday.

The AAA club said its survey showed that regular grades of gasoline averaged 65.1 cents per gallon, premium grades 69.8 cents and lead-free products 68.7 cents.

Prices for gasoline at self - service stations averaged from four to five cents lower than at full-service pumps, the survey showed.

The association said the highest prices in the survey area were recorded around Lake Tahoe and Monterey, the Yosemite Valley and inland areas of California between Sacramento and the Oregon border.

The club said gasoline should be readily available during the upcoming holiday, but spot shortages may develop, especially at lead-free pumps.

Since the Memorial Day weekend a month ago, the association said, gasoline prices have risen an average of threetenths of a cent.

Post in praise of BART budget

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A long - time critic of the Bay Area Rapid Transit District, A. Alan Post, now says BART "acted responsibly" by balancing its budget and improving equipment reliability.

But the nonpartisan legislative analyst recommended to the legislature Thursday that BART delay its plans to add Saturday service, to increase Concord - Daly City service, and to begin direct Richmond -Daly City service in 1978.

In a 24 - page analysis, Post said uncertainties about the financing and the technical improvements in the planning stages make it unwise for BART to seek expansions of its current Monday - through - Friday service during 1978.

Things to know if you're shopping for your eyes

More than half of all Americans wear eyeglasses or contact lenses, but consumers trying to spot the best buy may be confused by the variety of products and services available.

The American Optometric Association, representing about 80 per cent of the nation's optometrists, estimates that 112 million persons wear prescription lenses. About 14 million of them, or a little more than 10 per cent, wear contacts.

There are no figures available on the number of people who need glasses, but don't wear them. Dr. Ronald Fair, the association president, said, however, that "everybody over the age of 60 probably needs glasses." He said the eye's ability to change focus from near to far or vice versa starts diminishing when a person reaches 40 and is usually gone completely within 20 years.

Prices for glasses vary widely, depending on the complexity of the prescription, the quality of the lens, the type of frames you select and the place you get them. Contact lenses generally cost more than conventional glasses and soft lenses are about twice as expensive as hard ones.

Comparison shopping by price may be difficult. The American Association of Retired Persons says only five states and the District of Columbia allow unrestricted price advertising of eyeglasses. Other states limit or prohibit such advertising. The Federal Trade Commission is considering regulations to change the situation, but you'll have to do your own fact-finding for the time being.

Here, in question and answer form, are some basics to keep in mind:

Q. What is the difference between an ophthamologist, an optometrist and an optician?

A. Ophthamologists are physicians who specialize in the care of the eye and related structures, providing medical and surgical treatment. They may or may not dispense glasses. Optometrists are trained and licensed to examine the eyes and prescribe lenses. They hold doctoral degrees, but are not medical doctors and do not treat eye diseases or perform surgery. Opticians fill prescriptions and manufacture and dispense glasses.

If you want an eye examination, you have to go to an ophthamologist or optometrist. The Food and Drug Administration also says contact lenses should be prescribed and fitted by an optometrist or ophthamologist.

Q. What should an eye examination include?

A. A personal and family history, an external and internal examination of the eye, including checks for such diseases as glaucoma; "visual acuity" tests to determine how well you can see and refraction tests to find out what is needed to correct errors.

Q. How much will all this cost?

A. Fair said the typical examination costs $20 to $50. This does not include the cost of the glasses, nor does it cover dispensing fees. Lens prices depend largely on the type of correction you need. The lenses may be made of plastic or glass which has been treated to resist breakage. (Neither kind is completely shatterproof.) Frames generally start at $12 to $15 and Fair said $50 is about typical.

Reminder: Always ask for an itemized bill, listing each charge separately so you will know where your money is going.

Q. How often do you need an eye exam?

A. It depends on the individual. If you have a vision problem, the doctor should tell you when to return for a checkup. A general rule of thumb is once every two years for adults and once a year for children.

Q. Should I get contact lenses or glasses?

A. Again, it depends on the individual. Not everyone can wear contacts. The optometrists group estimates that 73 per cent of all contact lens wearers are female and almost half are under 24.

Q. Are soft contact lenses easier to wear?

A. The FDA reports that many people find soft lenses more comfortable and easier to wear, because the sensation of having a foreign body in the eye goes away within four or five minutes. The FDA says, however, that there are some drawbacks in addition to the higher cost. Soft lenses tear easily and become worn from handling and they require special care to prevent them from absorbing bacteria and other impurities. The FDA says soft lenses have an average life span of about a year; Fair says the average is closer to 18 months.

For more information, you can get a government pamphlet, "Soft Contact Lenses," at no charge.

"I'm just not going to be uncomfortable this summer."

Peoples' rights

There is a great deal of talk these days about the right of a few citizens who wish to actively participate in those Monday night council sessions. We should be more concerned with the right every citizen has to full information regarding the governmental process.

Two decades spent covering or observing the local scene has convinced this reporter that a large percentage of those confrontations involving people and their government could have been avoided, or at least softened, had the citizenry better understood the problem, and kept pace with the local agency's step - by - step response to that need.

How we accomplish that education is something else. Far too often the boards, the administrators, the authors of those long reports and legalistic findings forget that their ultimate responsibility is to convey that information to the people ... in language that most people can understand, and in a form which invites public response.

The press is equally at fault. We are so busy relaying what government or the critics of government have to say, and reporting the drama of that exchange, that we neglect to explain the background to those actions, and we rarely examine the available alternatives.

We are a democracy founded on the free exchange of ideas, the uncluttered flow of information. We are losing that freedom in a jumble of words which, while they might compliment the politician or the politician's self - annointed critic, achieve very little else.

And that is one reason why local government faces a crisis of public confidence today.

The tree planters

On Monday night Pleasanton City Council will get a check for $5160. But the community will get much more.

Young trees that now are arranged modestly along Santa Rita and Hopyard roads, throughout the Civic Center site and the far reaches of Foothill Road, will someday shade those thoroughfares with the majesty that only 50 - year - old Sycamores or 60 - foot - high Hackberries can bring.

Pleasanton was once renowned for its trees, but time and growth have removed many of the walnuts and elms which past generations left us. And that is why an ad hoc committee of Pleasantonites resolved three years ago to "start planting a new generation of tall trees."

In this task they enrolled the support of civic organizations and the city staff, but the big boost would come from people ... parents and children, those wishing to be remembered and others wishing to remember, each of them giving $15 to assure the purchase, planting and cultivation of a single tree.

It was a unique venture. It has a fantastic future.

When the "Trees for Pleasanton" committee makes its final accounting to the city council on Monday, they will report 393 trees planted, over $5600 raised from voluntary contributions, and enough reserve on hand to plant the seed for a Phase II "Trees for Pleasanton" campaign, should such a venture prove desirable in a year or two.

All that remains now is to record the names of some 330 donors in the "Book of Trees" ... a permanent tribute to the town, and the people, who want future generations to know "we cared."

The law makers

Did you know there is a bill pending in Sacramento that would prohibit the "hawking" of beer at baseball games?

Or that another bill would compel "The Men's Lounge" at the golf club to be open at all times to women? ... and vice versa.

Or how about the move that would force newspapers to drop those "two - for - one" discount offers to new subscribers? Or that other gambit to tax "all sources of litter"?

And here you were wondering what our legislators do that makes them earn that last salary boost!

Homosexuals defended

Editor, The Times:

Analyze the Rev. Arthur Carl's rebuttal of Ron McNicoll's moderate position on homosexuality, and you will see that the pastor showed not one iota of compassion or understanding. Unlike Jesus, this Reverend would rather be first with the hurled stone.

Homosexuality is older than any and all religious dogmas, and it will still be here when the next Ice Age returns. The majority of Homosexuals are born that way. These gent folk can no more deny their preference than the heterosexual minister can deny his eye for a nicely turned female ankle!

I wonder if Nita Bryant and Rev. Carl will refuse to listen to the divine music of Tschaikowski when they learn that this gifted artist was a homosexual?

If only we understood

The week in retrospect

Demise of a lady

An old friend will be missing from the tree-lined streets of Pleasanton today.

For more than four decades, oldtimers in the Valley as well as the young 'uns grew accustomed to her presence on a Sunday near the end of June.

Decked out in bright bunting, a little brassy but basically homespun, she became an institution.

But like many institutions, the pace of modern day and the demands therof became too much for her.

And she died quietly. No fanfare. No fevered efforts to breathe life into what had become an accepted part of the landscape each June.

And so the flags will be raised today at the Fairgrounds, the carnies will setup, the racing aficionados will check the charts one more time before tomorrow's opening post and the pace of Valley life will go on with nary a discernible pause.

The annual "Fair parade" is no more.

There was a time in this Valley when they lined up the floats, the local bands and marching units, and the battalion of horses — and everyone knew about it.

It was almost like the Valley's own private little parade. But the city came out to the country in the 60s and "that little parade down Main Street" soon became a Bay Area-wide attraction. But the floats and the marchers, the horses and the parade planners remained pretty much "local."

There were signs long before the 1976 Bicentennial-theme parade that the parade was in trouble. But the Pleasanton Bicentennial Committee, along with the Jaycees and the County Fair Association Board of Directors, realized that it would be an incredible gaffe to not retain the parade in this country's 200th birthday year.

Basically, the demise is the result of lack of interest. Not on the part of the County Fair Association, though. They had come to the point where they felt a group or groups within the community should take over management and funding of the parade. The Association was willing to continue funding of prizes for the judged portion of the parade.

But a sponsor with organizational expertise and enthusiasm was needed. An organization with $$$, that is. For one of the problems leading to the demise of the parade at Fairtime was insurance. We are in an era where risk - taking, whether one be a doctor, lawyer, Indian chief or parade planner, is a vehicle that can take you straight to the poor house.

Even if "all the world loves a parade," it also prefers security with a no - fault clause.

Whether the parade will be revived in future years is problematical. If it is, the impetus will have to come from within the community for the Fair board has made its feelings known on the matter.

Has the community missed the parade? Probably not. We hope we're wrong.

Maybe there's still a place for that pretty, homespun lady with the touch of pizzazz.

Environmental costs

By Molly Sestanovich

Could relaxing environmental standards help relieve the nation's unemployment? Or do pollution programs actually make more jobs available?

Much research has been done to answer these questions — by such governmental agencies as the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Labor, and such private concerns as the Council on Environmental Quality and Chase Econometrics Associates. The League of Women Voters has compiled their findings into an easy - to - read pamphlet entitled, "Are Jobs Really the Price of a Clean Environment?"

Both supporters and opponents of environmental controls agree that some jobs are being affected. But how many? In 1971 the Environmental Protection Agency created an Economic Dislocation Early Warning System to collect information on actual industrial plant closings or cuts in operation and to keep track of jobs that may be affected in plants in danger of closing.

As of September 1976, EDEWS had tracked closings or production curtailments in 90 plants, resulting in the dislocation of 19,508 employes. (This figures is small when compared to the more than 88 million working Americans.) In each of the cases recorded by EDEWS, environmental regulations played a big part in management's decision to cut back. But in almost every case these plants were also losing money.

For example, the Rockwell International Corporation closed an automobile bumper manufacturing plant in Newton Falls, Ohio, that employed 920 people. A declining demand for large automobile bumpers, a trend in auto companies to make bumpers in-house and high costs to meet water standards all brought about the decision.

Many industries have found that pollution control actually saves them money. For example, a $2.7 million capital investment by Dow Corning for equipment to recover chlorine and hydrogen previously lost to the atmosphere cut operating costs by $900,000 a year.

How many jobs were created by pollution control programs? A Bureau of Labor Statistics study based on 1970 data to determine how many jobs were created by federal outlay for pollution control shows that each billion dollars spent on research and development programs created 76,700 jobs; on abatement and control programs, 78,400 jobs, on radiation programs, 84,100 jobs; and on waste water treatment plant construction, 53,600 jobs.

If you would like a copy of "Are Jobs Really the Price of a Clean Environment?" send 60 cents to the League of Women Voters of Diablo Valley, 3557 Mt. Diablo Blvd., Lafayette, 94549.

round the town

With the return of the County Fair I am prompted to offer once again my "Timely Tips for Pony Players" which has always been one of this newspaper's more popular features.

My credentials in this matter go back to a youth spent following the Prairie Fair Circuit, a time when knowledge of the jockeys and their private financial straits was considerably more important to the bettor than any understanding of the poor steeds they pushed around the track.

Not that I want to suggest today's crop of jockeys is motivated by anything other than "improvement of the breed and entertainment of the public." On that score, jockeys today are much like owners and trainers. Winning is secondary to a happy throng.

Today's racing is a science, an art form brought to its peak of excellence after years of careful breeding, sound management and honest stewardship. There has not, in point of fact, been any scandal attached to horse racing since last week, when some poor losers back east challenged Seattle Slew's birthright.

Knowing your horse's background is, I must admit, of vital importance in choosing a beast worthy of your confidence, and your cash. Fortunately, The Daily Racing Form is a wonderful source of such information.

You must approach that publication much like you would approach the Wall Street Journal — with complete ignorance. The code designations used on the Racing Form are not unlike those which appear on the stock market pages. And just about as informative.

For years I followed the Daily Racing Form with dilligence, with patience, and without a single winning season. The problem, I was later to learn, is that the Racing Form is compiled by owners and trainers who know the horses' past history. What is needed is information which deals with the animal's future performance.

On this score there are several sources of solid counsel. Most daily newspapers will keep you posted on their own prognostications about the ponies running that day, for no greater investment than the price of that publication. These predictions are drawn from the newspaper's large staff of equestrian experts.

(Two years ago this newspaper offered such advance touting on the horses, compiled by our staff of high school stringers who were pulled off their Little League assignment just for that two - weeks' Fair Meet. Their predictions were surprisingly good!)

A more colorful source of advance information on the horses can be obtained as you enter the Fairgrounds. All along that grand promenade you will be approached by friendly, polite vendors who are there to share their particular wisdom with the pony players.

I have had personal knowledge of one "Harry the Hipe" who has functioned at the County Fair under the banner, "Harry's Blue Ribbon Choices."

Harry and I first became acquainted when this newspaper claimed considerable commercial printing business. Harry entered our premises, set his papers down on the counter, and began to talk:

"I will want you to print my Blue Ribbon Choices every day of this meet, I will want you to swear your entire crew to secrecy, and I will want you to work every evening," he announced.

We will want a great deal of money for such a service, Harry was informed. But he quickly put our fears to rest by pealing off dollar bills from a roll that would, if you'll pardon the expression, choke a horse.

The detail of Harry's printing order seemed simple enough, perhaps too simple:

"On white paper you will print up 500 of each day's choices under the heading — 'Harry's 50 Cent Specials.' On pink paper will you will print up lists under the title 'Harry's One Dollar Super Selections.' And on some nice blue paper (you do have some nice blue paper, don't you?) I will want you to print the horses names under 'Harry's Five Dollar Blue Ribbon Choices'."

But, I protested, each of these lists give the same horses, even though you charge 50 cents for the white, one dollar for the pink and five dollars for the blue!

"My boy," Harry said (I told you this was some years ago) "the secret in touting race horses is not in what you tell the people, but in how good you make them feel! The more they pay for my selections, the better they feel about their chances of winning." And then he added, with great seriousness, "no intelligent human being ever expects to make money betting on a bunch of stupid horses."

Which is the advice I share with you, good friends. Play the ponies for fun, but never for profit.

Lottery

Should California follow the lead of 13 other states in establishing a state operated lottery? The question will be put to the voters next year if Assemblyman Robert Cline gains legislative approval for his proposed constitutional amendment ACA 41.

The idea of a legalized lottery is not new having been before the Legislature numerous times in the past twenty years. In 1964 it was even submitted to the voters who rejected it by a two to one vote. However, that proposal would have permitted the lottery to be operated by a private corporation. Cline's measure would authorize only one run by the state.

At the time Californians were turning down the lottery New Hampshire was becoming the first state to permit a ticket sweepstakes since the Louisiana Lottery vanished from the scene more than 70 years ago.

Cline's bill, which barely squeaked out of the Assembly Governmental Operations Committee by a 5 to 3 vote, was opposed by religious groups and law enforcement representatives, the latter contending that losers in lotteries turn to crime.

It is a fortuitous circumstance then that the report of the President's Commission on Gambling has just been released to shed some light on the issue. A 200 page document, backed up by 2500 pages of appendices, it finds that "Gambling is inevitable."

Significant to the question of whether or not gambling in any form should be legalized is the Commission's finding of fact that it is "a pastime indulged in by two-thirds of the American people and approved by perhaps 80 per cent of the population, (and) contributes more than any other single enterprise to police corruption ... and to the well being of the Nation's criminals."

That fact should be weighed against "police opposition" to legalized gambling. So, too should the Commission's conclusion in obvious reference to laws against gambling which have been enacted as the result of pressures from religious factions. "Existing policies that accomplish little for the minority of people and frustrate the will of the majority should not be perpetuated," it stated, adding "Neither this Commission nor any other governmental body should attempt to impose its will on the public ... "

Specifically as to lotteries, the Commission having studied the 13 states which conduct them, held that their existence "does not have a harmful impact on society."

Somewhat supportive of Cline's claim that a lottery is a "voluntary taxation which would raise money for the state while letting people have a little fun," was the Commission's conclusion that a lottery" can make a modest contribution to ... a state's ... revenue needs" but warned "the earmarking of lottery revenus for specific state programs be avoided because the practice tends to warp the budgetary process and to deprive state officials of the flexibility required to meet changing needs."

Actually the Commission saw far more merit in viewing the legalizing of some forms of gambling as a means to combat illegal operations by organized crime than as a revenue producer.

Conceding that lotteries conducted during the early days of the nation had led to corruptions the Commission said "modern state lotteries have successfully avoided" corruption adding the states "have developed highly successful systems of internal security and are capable of protecting the integrity of the games from theft, forgery and related conduct."

As for losers "turning to crime," the study showed the amount of money wagered annually by the average person ranged between $17 and $37.

Berry's World

"Poor kid! He has a 'stage mother' and a 'little league father'!"

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 40 - year - old woman married to what today's liberated women would call a male chauvinist. He's a man who is used to being looked up to by women, starting with his mother. He has to be considered the authority, especially if there are no other males around. He has rigid rules for me and my children which we don't mind following. When I don't want to do what he says, if I disagree, I have my own private ways of getting around the rules. I pretend I'm doing what he wishes. The result is harmony. My point is that unlike a lot of liberated women, I'm happy, my marriage is whole and this seems a far better solution to me. All women ought to know how to be subtle and to get what they want without rocking the boat. — C.U.

DEAR C.U.: If I'm reading you correctly, you're saying that it's better for a woman to learn how to be devious and manipulative than for her to be considered an equal. I disagree. I believe a great deal of energy is spent in families such as you describe, learning how to deceive. This kind of deception limits opportunities for growth: yours, your children's and your husband's.

Your husband never learns because he lives only with deception. Your children probably resent having to use a different set of standards when dealing with their father, and because of his authoritarianism, they are robbed of a realtionship of honesty, sharing and warmth.

If one individual must always be right, there can never be a real exchange of ideas. This leads to boredom and when children are bored, they get into trouble. The "harmony" you describe is a false harmony. The cost of this kind of peace is too high.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My neighbor is supposed to be a nice person but I have the feeling she's insincere, and I don't trust her. My husband accuses me of being paranoid and cynical in my old age. I truly don't believe this is so. I can't figure out what this woman wants. She constantly compliments me and I want to say, "Flattery will get you nowwhere. Be honest. What do you really want?" Of course, I don't. Instead, I complain to my husband and then feel guilty because I'm so mean and unfriendly. — V.P.

DEAR V.P.: Your neighbor may not want anything from you, though I understand why you feel she might. It's possible that she's an insecure person who feels that the only way to attract people and to make friends is through compliments.

Actually, this is not the best approach in winning people over or making them admire you. Your reaction isn't unlike that of many people who distrust flattery and suspect the individual who says nice things about them.

Sociologists Ronny Turner and Charles Edgley discovered that 65 per cent of the people they interviewed experienced some uneasiness when compliments were paid them. They found compliments often made the recipient feel embarrassed, defensive and cynical. Many times, the people felt that the compliment made them obligated and that those nice phrases indicated that they would have to make some kind of payment in exchange. Compliments caused some people to feel apprehensive or resentful.

Why don't you give this neighbor the benefit of the doubt. Explain that compliments make you a bit nervous, but that you'd like to be her friend. See what happens.

DICK ROGERS

You have probably seen Saturn, sixth planet out from the sun, looking very much like a bright yellow star.

When viewed through a telescope, Saturn is the most spectacular planet of all. This is because of its gleaming rings.

The rings are believed to consist of countless numbers of ice-coated rocks, from the size of peas to boulders the size of pianos.

The chunks of rocks travel around the planet at its equator like swarms of moons in four separate, flat rings. Though the rings stretch outward some 50,000 miles, they are at most only a few thousand feet thick. It is the sunlight striking the rings that makes them shine.

In addition to its rings, Saturn has 10 large moons.

Saturn isn't the only ringed planet in our sun's family. Scientists recently discovered that Uranus may have as many as seven rings. The rings are probably made up of ice particles just like those of the rings of Saturn.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 54-year-old female of medium weight. A few months ago I was diagnosed as having Sjorgen's syndrome. Presently I am suffering from very dry and burning lips and nose, and a severe burning of the external genital organ. My eyes are dry, for which they give me eye drops. Every night I have to put hormone cream into the vagina.

If I have any cold or sore throat I have to take extra medicine. Drinking water by the gallons wouldn't soothe the burning inside my stomach and cheeks. One thing that helps to soothe this burning is taking buttermilk, at least two quarts every 24 hours. The doctors inform me that this is a rare and incurable disease.

So far I can swallow freely without food sticking to my throat.

What is your advice for my situation? I desperately need some encouragement. Is this disease restricted to females or do males have it too?

DEAR READER — Your doctors are doing about all that can be done for your problem. We know that the disease is associated with an infiltration of the tear glands of the eyes and salivary glands by white blood cells (lymphocytes). This may make the salivary glands enlarge around the jaw bone.

Less than 10 per cent of patients with this disease are males. It often occurs in women who have rheumatoid arthritis. In addition to the absence of tears and the dry mouth that can lead to difficulties in swallowing, it may cause dryness of the entire respiratory tract, skin and vagina.

Artificial tears, as your doctors are giving you, help the eye problem some. A similar solution can be used as a mouth wash. There is some new work on the use of immune suppressing drugs similar to those used to prevent rejection of transplanted organs, but this needs further study.

Opening lead — K ♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "If you could always make the best opening lead, you wouldn't have to worry about bad cards or anything else. You would beat so many contracts that you would be a sure winner."

Jim: "South's four-spade bid had nothing to commend it. He and his partner were playing the jump to game in a major to show good distribution and not much in high cards. It would require just the right maximum in the North hand for there to be any play for the slam. Still South did bid four spades and North was fully justified in bidding five clubs to show his controls in that suit."

Oswald: "At this point the best South could do was to bid five hearts. He couldn't handle either the first or second diamond lead."

Jim: "Dallas Internationalist Bobby Goldman, who sat West, had listened to the bidding and it didn't require any great skill on his part to plunk his king of diamonds down on the table. That is, it didn't require any great skill for a two-time world champion. He led the king of diamonds, continued with a diamond to his partner's ace and ruffed the third diamond to leave South a day late and a trick short."

Valley human services listed in handy guide

PLEASANTON — Wind your way through the hall under old fashioned high ceilings and past massive, dark wood doors. A sharp right turn will bring you to the "human resources" end of the city's Recreation Department.

Not in the modern, efficient City Hall across the street. But tucked along the Bernal Avenue side of the seemingly ancient Veterans Memorial Building.

The room is cavernous with sunlight baking the windows along the west wall. More dark doors and waist high wood molding break the creamed monotony of buff siding.

A bright, old fashioned, perhaps Persian rug would color the room, maybe taking it back to its glory days.

As it is, Dianne McKenna and Janet Kramer staff a handful of rag-tag table tops used as desks and work space, and share the office with Lu Wilson of the Senior Service Center.

Were the surroundings as sumptuous as the work is efficient, the city would have another show place.

McKenna and Kramer tumbled from the alphabet soup of government. Dianne from ACAP/ACTEB, and Janet out of CETA. That's the Associated Community Action Program — Alameda County Training and Employment Board and the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The funds are federal and administered by the county.

So what do they do under the burgeoning title of "Human Resources Department?"

Their first finished project is a whopper. A 51-page directory of "human services" provided in the Valley.

So what's a human service?

It's local programs for everything from alcoholism to legal advice and community care to the disabled, handicapped, and aged. From mental health to physical health. Financial services to housing.

It's to avoid those endless hours of telephone calls, referrals, the hold button and seemingly mindless bureaucrats.

It's hard to tell exactly how long the two have been working on the project.

Dianne has been collecting bits and pieces for months. Janet joined the department last month and pushed it all together. They've printed 100 directories, and distributed them to the Human Service Commission and city council.

More copies will go where needed — politicians offices, libraries, the various agencies listed in the directory — to offer instant assistance to people in need.

The books are available for $1, "a lot less than it cost to print them," says Dianne.

The project grew from creation of the Human Services Commission last year. It will drive through the balance of the summer as the two complete and collate their "human needs" survey, the alter ego of the directory.

Alameda County's Social Service Agency produced a similar, but more expansive directory. The local version confines itself to the Valley.

Dianne and Janet drew on the county's book, their own door to door search, Judy Turner of the Valley Mental Health Clinic and Shirley O'Callaghan.

They hope for feedback that will enable them to update the lists of agencies.

"We're hoping to see people we haven't even thought of calling," says Dianne.

If the idea works, and similar systems have elsewhere, those in need will be coupled with the proper agency in the shortest possible time.

The surroundings notwithstanding, Janet Kramer (left) and Dianne McKenna pulled together a tome of "people in need" services throughout the Valley.

Area builders hear formula for future

By BOB NOREK

SAN LEANDRO — "Educate, legislate, communicate and cooperate!"

That was the advice this week of Gary Morgan to members of the Young Home Builders of Northern California. Morgan, president of the Associated Building Industry of Northern California (ABI), said these four words were the key to a successful trade organization.

Morgan served on a panel discussing the benefits of builder associations. Also on the panel were Thor Madsen, executive director, Peninsula Builder Exchange; and Peter Muller, district manager, Associated General Contractors of California (East Bay and Central Coast Division).

Morgan told his Blue Dolphin audience that if associations followed these four principles they would be active not only to their members but to their industry and the community.

The ABI is a regional organization consisting of home builders, realtors and firms associated with the new home industry.

Concurring with Morgan was Madsen, who also stressed active legislation by associations. "We're facing a losing battle in this country. Special interest groups are winning over builders. We're being overrun by a few," he told his audience.

Madsen urged active involvement by associations in city and county government. He also said involvement by membership in all association areas is a key to success. If members are not involved they and the industry will soon forget what an association is doing and has done for them, he said.

The panelist said his exchange has taken note of the growing trend of cities and counties to have their own staff doing construction work. "Many of these project should be handled by private enterprise," Madsen said.

Madsen also urged Young Home Builders to join and be active in as many industry groups as possible. Associations play a vital role in any industry, he commented.

Muller quickly briefed his audience on his association and its membership which is made up of contractors and general contractors with 300 members in his district. Muller said AGC members are involved in industrial, commercial and highway construction.

Norris feeds gopher, A's fall, 6-4

OAKLAND — Mike Norris sat on the stool near his locker and just shrugged his shoulders.

"I really don't know what's the matter," he said. "I think I'm throwing well. I just have to learn to keep them from hitting the ball out of the park."

That in a nutshell, was Norris's problem yesterday as the Oakland A's fell to Kansas City, 6-4 at the Coliseum before 12,667 fans.

The Royals belted four home runs, three of them off Norris, to hand the A's their fourth straight defeat and ninth loss in the last 10 games.

Norris, now 2-3 for the season, was tagged with the loss. Bob Lacey relieved Norris in the seventh inning after the third home run off Mike.

Pete LaCock walked to open the fateful seventh. After A's manager Bobby Winkles walked to the mound to confer with Norris, Fred Patek laid down a perfect bunt to sacrifice LaCock to second.

Winkles then brought in Lacey. Bob got Cookie Rojas to ground out but pinch hitter Joe Zdeb then blasted a long drive over the center field fence 370 feet away for the first home run of his career.

Hal McRae then grounded back to Lacey for the third out but the Royals were ahead to stay.

Kansas City added what appeared to be just two insurance runs in the ninth on a two-run homer by Patek but they turned out to be the decisive tallies.

The A's came right back in their half of the ninth.

Designated hitter Earl Williams singled to open the inning but Wayne Gross struck out and Manny Sanguillen poped out to apparently end the Oakland threat.

But Mitchell Page belted a two-run homer over the right field fence (his ninth of the year and first since May 11) to throw a scare into Royal starter Jim Colborn. Colborn was then relieved by Mark Littell who got Tony Armas to ground out to second to end the game.

Dave Justi relieved Lacey after Patek's shot in the ninth and got the side out.

Kansas City took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when catcher Darrell Porter belted a home run over the left field fence with two outs.

The Royals added another run in the fourth on burly John Mayberry's homer.

Hoever, the A's got back in the game quickly.

In the fifth stanza after Sanguillen grounded out Page walked. Center fielder Tony Armas then smashed a homer over the left field barrier to tie contest.

The A's had a chance to go ahead in the sixth but failed.

First baseman Jerry Tabb opened the stanza with a single and Williams sacrificed him to second, putting the lead run in scoring position.

However, Gross and Sanguillen each flied out to end the threat.

Colborn had a perfect game for 3⅓ innings before Marty Perez clubbed a single to right field.

He fanned seven batters and gave up just five hits before retiring.

Norris didn't pitch a bad game himself. In 6⅓ innings he gave up seven hits but just walked two and had four strikeouts.

"I've just got to keep trying," Norris said. "Maybe my luck will change.

"I know everybody on the team is trying," he went on. "We're just in a bad streak. I'm frustated about these home runs."

Winkles had no regrets about taking Norris out of the contest.

"Lacey is an outstanding reliever and has done the job for us all year," Winkles reflected. "I "After kept Mike in to pitch to Patek because he's good at fielding bunts."

When asked about the A's recent slump Winkles did not seem greatly concerned.

"Things aren't going too good for us right now," he admitted. "We've got a lot of young players and it's our job (him and the coaches) to help bring them along."

In the happy but quiet Royal locker-room Zdeb said he had no regrets about playing the pinch-hitters' role.

Giants, Astros split

HOUSTON (AP) — Charlie Williams and Gary Lavelle combined on a five-hitter to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 4-1 victory over the Houston Astros for a split of their twi-night doubleheader Saturday.

Ken Boswell's 10th inning pinch single drove home Wilbur Howard with the winning run as the Astros took a 4-3 decision in the opener.

Williams, 3-1, picked up his first career victory against the Astros, helping the Giants snap a five-game losing streak.

Little Tracy messed with Chrissie's mind

WIMBLEDON, England — "It was the toughest match of my life, psychologically," said Chris Evert after meeting tennis' new wonder girl, 14- year-old Tracy Austin, on Wimbledon's hallowed center court.

"Even playing Billie Jean King is a piece of cake in comparison," said Chrissie, who needed all the composure of a great champion to control her swirling emotions as she stepped onto the most famous court in tennis Friday and played a miniature version of herself.

With 15,000 fans packed around the center court and hundreds more watching the scoreboard outside, the defending champion was engaged in long, testing rallies by the youngster from Rolling Hills, Calif. which the 6-1, 6-1 score in Miss Evert's favor did not reveal.

Miss Austin was the center of attention, her teeth in schoolgirl braces and her hair tied back, as she contested the third-round women's singles match against the reigning queen of tennis.

For too long, Miss Evert has been cast as the unemotional "Ice Maiden" of tennis. Her methodical game with its reliance on ground strokes and baseline rallies makes her seem machine-like.

But those close to the 22-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., say she is a warm, considerate person. And that's what showed Friday.

She told Tracy how to curtsy to the Royal Box, and after the match put her arm around her, and they curtsied again.

Nine of the 12 women's singles seeds have reached the last 16, who began their fourth-round matches today. Miss Evert, paired against Greer Stevens of South Africa, could meet Billie Jean King in the quarter-finals if Ms. King beats Marise Kruger, also of South Africa.

The pairings in the last 16 of the men's singles promised some sparkling tennis. Jimmy Connors, the No. 1 seed, played fellow American Stan Smith; defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden faced Poland's Wojtek Fibak, and Dick Stockton of the United States met countryman Vitas Gerulaitis. Seven of the men's seeds have been beaten.

Other third-round singles results Friday included:

Ilie Nastase, Romania, over Eliot Teltscher, Palos Verdes, Calif., 6-4, 6-3, 6-1; Dick Stockton, Dallas, over Fred McNair, Washington, D.C., 6-4, 6-3, 6-2; Vitas Gerulaitis, Kings Point, N.Y., over Jonathan Smith, Britain, 6-3, 8-6, 6-4; Stan Smith, Sea Pines, S.C., over Onny Parun, New Zealand, 6-3, 5-7, 9-8, 7-5; Tim Gullikson, Onalaska, Wis., over Brian Fairlie, New Zealand, 9-8, 6-3, 8-9, 6-3, and Sandy Mayer, Mendham, N.J., over Jorge Andrew, Venezuela, 6-4. 9-7. 6-4.

Meanwhile, defending men's doubles champions and top seeds, Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. and Raul Ramirez of Mexico were upset.

Stunning day in Valley Jr. tennis

First - round play concluded yesterday in the Livermore Tennis Club junior tennis tournament at Granada High School with a few of the kings already knocked off the top of the hill.

One of the day's surprises came in the Boys age-12 group, where the only seeded-player, Ricky Larson, was defeated in his first match by Steve Carter, 6-1, 6-4. Carter had earlier defeated Scott Mayo 6-1, 6-3 in his first of two matches on the day.

The Larson family had their problems in the Boys 14's too, where top-seeded Troy Larson lost a three-set decision to unseeded Scott Halbrook, 6-1, 2-6, 7-6 (5-4), as close as you can get.

Todd Larson saved face when he topped Dan Mackey, 6-2, 6-1 in the Boys 16's group to advance to this morning's semi-finals. Todd is top-seeded in the group.

Matt Anger, fresh off an NCTA 14's Sectional win, rummaged through Phil Newkirk, 6-2, 6-1, in the Boys 18 bracket to solidify his top-seeding there.

In the girls division, Jenny Anger lived up to her top-seeding in the girls 14's with a 6-1, 6-1 win over Cathy Eaton.

In the girls' 16's, top-seeded Stephanie Schall defeated Donna Digrazia, 6-3, 6-3, after Digrazia had earlier advanced with a 6-4, 6-2 win over Colleen Thomas.

Action in the tournament continues today with semi-final and championship matches taking place in all divisions at Granada High School.

The Boys 16's and 18's will begin semi-final matches at 11:00 with finals scheduled for 2:30. The Boys 12's and Girls 14's start semi-finals at 9:30 and finals at 1:00, while Boys 14's and Girls 16's begin bright and early this morning at 7:45 with semi-final matches, finals scheduled for 1:00.

Anger rallies in U-14's

Almost like a carbon copy of Friday's semi-final win, Pleasanton's Matt Anger kept his strength through the heat of the sun in downing rival Greg Holmes of Danville to win the Northern California Sectional 14's Tournament at Castlewood Country Club in Pleasanton Friday.

Anger lost the first set to Holmes, 7-6, but came back to take the next two by scores of 6-2, 6-1 and defeat his top-seeded nemesis for only the third time in his career.

Anger looked stronger against Holmes than he did in his semi-final win over Jim Heebner, the surprisingly tough doubles partner of Anger, the team of which captured first place in the doubles with a 6-3, 6-4 win over Brian Mehmedbasich and Ken Derr.

While Anger tired in the last set against Heebner and almost wound up losing a big lead in the third set, the Pleasanton resident could have taken a two-set victory with a little luck in the first set Friday.

Anger led Holmes 6-5 in games and had a 30-15 lead in the crucial game when Holmes broke service by taking advantage of some missed returns by Anger.

Holmes won the tie-breaker 5-2 by placing some key long shots in the corner past Anger.

Anger meant business in the second set, though, taking control and putting the pressure on his opponent through a strong serve and jumped out to a 2-0 lead, eventually winning the set 6-2.

In the third set, Anger and Holmes split the first two games before Anger eventually put Holmes away with a flurry of sharp forehands. He built up wins in game after game before tiring his opponent out completely and taking a 6-1 final set win and with it the championship.

The turning point in the third game of the final set can came when Anger, after having been forced to deuce three times, watched a Holmes return go long out of the court. The erratic play of Holmes continued while Anger, who made his way into the finals by letting the other man be the aggressor and consequently the mistakes, let Holmes do just that.

Mikles wins State Amateur

PEBBLE BEACH — Lee Mikles of Camarillo came from behind by winning three consecutive holes late in the match Saturday and beat Ted Lyford of Redlands 2 and 1 to win the 66th California Amateur Golf Championship.

The new champion, a 21-yearold college All-American at Arizona State, won despite playing his worst golf in the week-long event. He took four double bogeys, including one which left him 2 down with eight holes remaining in the match scheduled for 36 holes on the 6,815-yard Pebble Beach course.

Mikles said later, "This was as hard as I've ever seen Pebble Beach play. It was cold and windy with fog and the pins were back. Everything was going against you for medal play."

Fortunately, it was match play and Mikles won the 11th, 12th and 13th holes of the afternoon round with pars to regain the lead. Lyford, a 33-year-old salesman who also went to Arizona State, went bogey, bogey, double-bogey on those three holes. He took another bogey at No. 16 and went 2 down, and the match ended on the next hole as both golfers took bogeys.

Mikles, who plans to turn pro in September, was the runnerup to Southern California's Scott Simpson in the NCAA tournament earlier this month. Simpson was eliminated from the State Am in Friday's quarter-finals.

Lyford was playing in his first State Am since 1969. He was a pro for five years.

Pair grab Tiger's tail

Fred Bancalari and Jerry Fagunges were among the athletes who qualified for today's semi-finals of the Open Division of the Happy Tiger Handball Tournament at Livermore Wall and Ball yesterday.

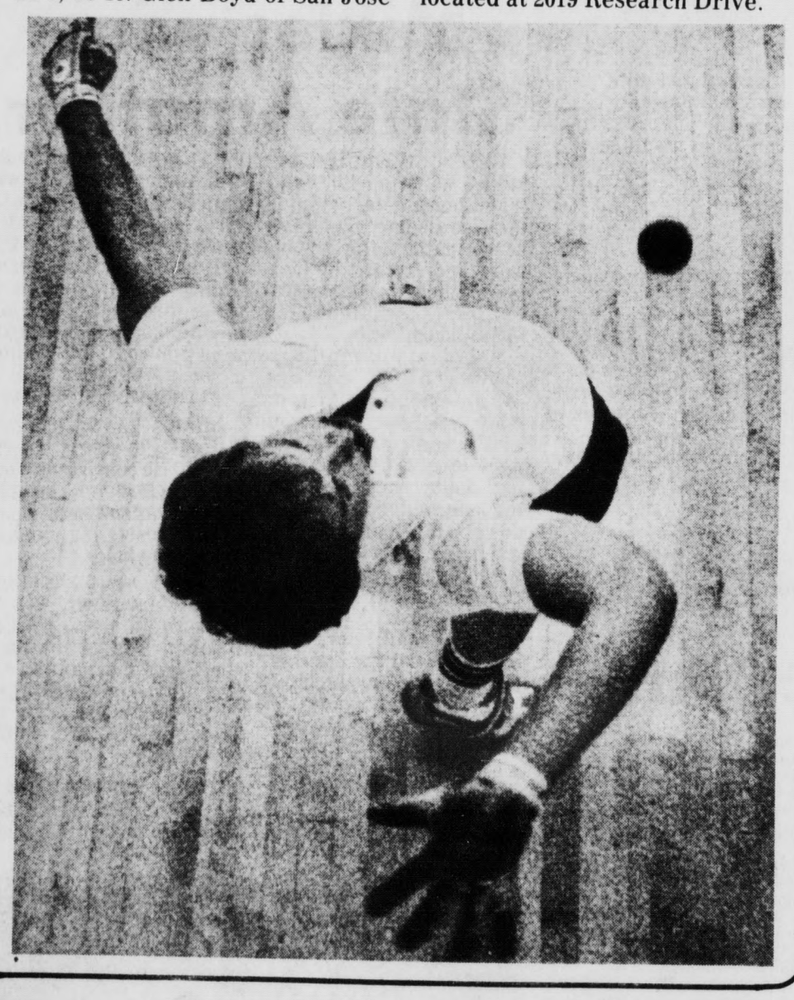
Bancalari defeated Nick Lapalca, 21-17, 21-9 and Fagunges topped Barry Bowman, 21-18, 21-16 in another quarter-final match.

In B Division competition Gary Burgimyon of hosr Wall and Ball defeated Bob Sarhad of Modesto, 21-6, 21-10. Glen Boyd of San Jose defeated Bob Taylor of Watsonville, 21-2, 21-15.

John Harris of Watsonville topped Hanloy Quock of Wall and Ball, 21-12, 21-10 in C Division action. Fred Harris of the Oakland YMCA toppled Tony Ragusin of the San Mateo Elks Club, 21-17, 5-21, 21-20 in one of the day's best matches.

Today's competition will start at 9 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m. with the end of the finals.

Admission to the tournament is free. Livermore Wall and Ball is located at 2019 Research Drive.



Chair doesn't hamper Jerry

Jerry Caton completely missed the archery target.

"You talk about embarrassment. Yeah, I really was," he said after the runaway arrow cleared the bale of hay supporting the target.

His next shot drew the same immediate reaction from the surrounding competition. Caton's ensuring attempt carved the flags resting above the target.

"I got another roar of laughter after that shot," he remembered, laughing now.

Caton was taking his lumps and chuckling about his unusual inability to find the range with the heavy supply of arrows resting at his side. But after you've aimed for the target from a wheelchair as long as Caton, it's easy to make jokes about it. He does it all the time.

His third shot from 60 yards finally hit the mark. It was high, yet nevertheless close enough to the center to rack up some points.

"It took me a good six arrows before I started hitting the mark consistently," explained Caton, who competed for the first time in the National Wheelchair Championships at DeAnza College last weekend.

In his own words, the Danville resident "bombed out", yet still managed to take home fifth place in the nine-man field with a total of 524 points.

"That's terrible for me," groaned Caton, who's accustomed to shooting in the 590 range and up. "I just didn't hack it that day. It was my own fault."

Caton wasn't reaching for any alibi, but immediately realized after firing his first shot that a long day was in store.

Competitors, divided in three classifications — Novice, Modified American and Potomac — were required to shoot from three different distances.

Caton had little diffculty from 40 yards, hitting nine of 10 arrows in the 10 point ring. But disaster struck from 50 and especially 60 yards.

He felt like Robin Hood at his worst.

"I had to adjust my sights during the competition and it cost me dearly," he said, sadly. "When you throw one (miss completely), that's 10 points right there."

The positive thinking Caton made a fatal mistake od trucking down to DeAnza for an anticipated practice round one day ahead of the event. It later proved a bitter mistake.

What were thought to be marks on a fence for 50 and 60 yards turned up to be miscalculations. Caton paid for the drastic error when the chips were down in the championships last Friday.

"The sights were more like 60 and 70," he moaned, looking back at a dress rehearsal.

Caton showed his archery prowess on the Modified American level where a marksmans's ability is tested to the fullest. "Fancy equipment," as Caton calls it, is completely outlawed, meaning only one stabilizer is permitted while bow releases are nonexistent.

"What is really needed," he noted, "is amateur archery in the truest sense. It's just like the normal Olympics. What they do is acceptable to us."

Actually, Caton's first love is the discus," he pointed out several times in conversation.

He missed qualifying for the Nationals in the event at the California Wheelchair Games three weeks ago in San Diego, but still took a third place with a lifetime best in competition of 60 feet, 10 inches. The U.S. champion hurled the platter 187 feet last weekend.

Caton, who has control of his body down to his navel and is classified accordingly with others, also throws the javelin (about 665 feet) and competes in the mile. When not on the track, he enjoys hunting, fishing and playing on a wheelchair basketball team in Berkeley.

"I just like to compete," admitted the man who lose his lost the use of his legs on Oct. 1, 1964, while in the Air Force combat with the military police. "I'm a competitive person whether it be sports or business. I need sports and think it's very healthy.

"I get everything I can out of life. I wake up in th morning, go to bed at night and the only thing I've got is what's in the middle."

Caton shows plenty of heart daily.

"The one thing my injury showed me," he continued, "is that people walk around and have no concept of death. I feel kind of sorry for them because they live for tomorrow. I believe that you should work for tomorrow but live for today. You may be gone tomorrow."

Before 1964, death was remote, something Caton seldom thought about. He concedes having no concept of it.

"Bu when I was hit and the bullet ripped through my spinal cord and came as close to the heart as you can get, I was prepared to die."

He was given the last rites'

"I thougtt I was dying," he recalled solemnly' They did too. The point is, since I came out of it, I'm now prepared for it from having come so close once before."

Jerry Caton fires away

There they go

Headed by Dual Purpose, seven distaff runners will go postward tomorrow afternoon in the $8500 Inaugural Purse when the Alameda County Fair launches its 12-day meeting.

First post is 1:30 p.m.

Five dollar exacta wagering will be offered on the first race an Appalloosa dash, and again on the eighth and twelfth races. Daily Double tickets will be sold for the fourth and fifth race combination.

To accomodate bettors and avoid the congestion that had almost become the Fair's trademark, an additional 14 sellers windows and six cashiers windows have been installed at the southern end of the grandstand.

Dual Purpose, assigned 116 pounds in the five and one-half furlong Inaugural, will be ridden by Randy Schacht and be opposed by Sweet Gal, Yo Do Lady Who, Shah Lea, Dickeys Lit'l Lulu, Sonoma Society and Sharp Pencil.

The daughter of Dumpty Humpty was a consistent campaigner at Golden Gate Fields, chalking up one victory and was in the money six times in eleven trips to the post. Her toughest opposition could come from Sonoma Society.

Sonoma Society will be ridden by the second leading rider on the fair circuit thus far, Bill Mahorney, and will be seeking her second career victory.

Her last outing came in the Emeryville Stakes, she drifted in and was disqualified from fourth to fifth place. With the exception of Sweet Gal and Sharp Pencil, both of whom could rate as strong contenders, the remainder of the field also scored at Golden Gate.

During the 12-day meeting at Pleasanton, six added-money events are to be decided and $585,000 will be distributed to horsemen.

Hula helps her hitting

SAN JOSE — Municipal Stadium could have passed for a remote tropical island here Friday night. The ushers were clad in brightly patterned sarongs and bedecked with leis.

All of the 1492 fans clutched pineapples and red flowers as they watched the San Jose Sunbirds slip by the Bakersfield Aggies, 1-0, in Hawaii night for the Women's Proffesional softball team.

Friday marked the opening of a three-day round-robin tournament in the WPS. The teams involved are the 'Birds, the Aggies and the Santa Ana Lionettes.

Amidst all the festivities, was one Sunbird who seemed to have a touch of jungle fever.

Between games, most of the persons in attendance had their eyes directed towards the field where three dark-haried young women in grass skirts were gyrating their bodies in time to the haunting beat of the jungle drums.

One had to blink twice to believe that they saw an orange and blue figure in the middle of the frenzied dancing.

It was shortstop Rayona Sharpnack, executing what looked like the Hawaiian hustle.

Maybe it was the extra pre-game warm-ups, but Sharpnack came back to collect three of the five Sunbird hits in the game in four at bats.

The junior high school teacher was batting .184 before the end of school and a bout with the flu.

"I was in a slump. Then when we went to Santa Ana last week I started getting two or three hits per game," she said. "As long as I'd been sick, I've really been hitting the ball."

Sharpnack explained, that she was tense going into the batter's box and lost her concentration before the pitch was thrown. Happily, that problem has been solved.

A pitcher a year ago, Sharpnack has had to adjust to the infield, but likes the change. She has played each of the four infield positions this season.

"Play me anywhere, but play me," she said eagerly. Rayona also credits her upsurge in hitting to support from the dugout and from the stands. "The fans give me their support and I come out here and give it back to them the best I can."

Despite Sharpnack's batting prowess, she and her team mates had a rough time against Bakersfield. The winning run finally materialized in the ninth after going into extra innings.

The rbi was credited to left fielder Jill Von Adelung who hit a powerful line drive to center field to end the game.

Winning pitcher Rhonda Ebersole posted her fourth shutout of the season and is leading the league in no-run games. She is 6-3 for the year.

The Lionettes zapped the Aggies, 1-0, in the first game, allowing ex-Sunbird pitcher Charlotte Graham to raise her seasons totals to 3-10.

Graham, who has had a disappointing premeire with the Lionettes, gave up only two hits. The game was her second shutout of the year.

Right fielder Linda McMorran drove in the winning run for Santa Ana. The tourney will conclude with tonight's final action getting underway at 6:30.

Anger wins

Meanwhile, second-seeded Robin White defeated upstart Kuulei McCalla, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4 to win the girls' singles title. Top-seeded Stacy Savides was knocked out of competition on Friday by McCalla, who was fourth-seeded going into the tourney.

In the doubles event, Anger and Heebner rolled to the title without losing a single set throughout the tournament, while Stacy Savides rebounded from her singles defeat to team with Erika Smith and take the girls' doubles title with a 6-0, 6-0 win over Desiree Stacy and Ann Chandler.

Friday's play completed the week-long tourney, which started Monday with over 100 players entered.

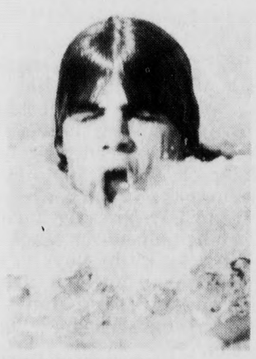
Jets Seeking New Trial Site

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The National Football League and New York Jets have asked that an antitrust suit filed by former Jets player Robert B. Parrish be transferred to New York for trial.

Parrish, 25, filed a $185,400 triple - damage suit that charges the NFL and Jets conspired to have a monopoly in professional football and prevent him from playing for any other team.

He was a defensive lineman for the Jets in 1973 and was under contract to them when he signed a contract with the Jacksonville Sharks of the World Football League in 1974.

Olympic swim tabs Davitt



Davitt Cunningham

Davitt Cunningham, a junior at San Ramon High, has been chosen to take part in a special training camp sponsored by the United States Olympic Swim Committee.

A total of 120 of the best swimmers in the country, including 80 men and 40 women, where chosen to attend the national training camp.

The two-week camp, at Squaw Valley, will be for evaluation and testing of the top swimmers in the nation.

Cunningham, 15, will join fellow Pleasanton Hill Club members Tony Pedretti of Walnut Creek, and Matt Rye of Benicia. Pedretti, 17, swims for Las Lomas High, while Rye is 16 years old.

Cunningham had improved considerably since he participated at the Nationals last spring in Canton, Ohio. The San Ramon High sensation has never lost an individual race while competing for the Wolvs in two years of competiton.

Cunningham clocked his best times last spring in the 100-backstroke, his specialty. Cunningham went 52.9 in the 100-back at the North Coast Championships, and has a personal best of 52.2, which is the second fastest time in the nation, according to his coach at Pleasant Hill, Ron Young.

Frank Keefe of the Foxcatcher Swim Club of Philadelphia and Terry Carlisle, the former head swim coach at Florida State University, have been selected to run the Olympic training camp.

Cunningaam is hopeful of iinding up i0 th ppt Olympic Games. Of course, his fingers are crossed and speeds in the water is increasingly almost daily.

"I think if I continue to improve at the rate Ive been going, I have a very good chance," he said.

He'll be going to the Squaw Vally camp with a strong sense of determination. He realizes Olympic officials will be watching his every stroke.

"I'm just going to go up there and try my best" he noted. "I look at it as just an honor to be asked. It'll be mostly for observation for what they think is proper training for the 1980 Olympics.

A place Davitt Cunningham wants to be.

D. Avidisian was the losing hurler. MacKnight and Avidisian each had two hits. Purvis added a double for the losers. The Pirates outhit the winners 7-5 but a six-run first inning by LLLRA was the key.

Cary sparks SR overtime victory

Despite blowing a big third quarter lead San Ramon went on to top Danville 48-41 in overtime in Pleasanton Recreation Allied Brokers Summer Basketball League action Thursday night at Amador Valley High School.

Chuck Cary again paced the winners, scoring 18 points, four of them in the overtime period.

San Ramon led after three quarters, 34-26 but the Wolves caught fire in the final period and outscored the Grizzlies 13-5 to send the game in an extra period.

Daryl Lamb added eight points for San Ramon. Towns led Danville with 14 markers and Johnson had eight.

The Grizzlies led 9-6 after the first period and 21-16 at halftime. Cary's three field goals helped increase their margin in the third quarter.

In another contest Fremont led all the way in defeating Walnut Creek 57-46.

Flashy guard Tim Henning was again the star for the Huskies, canning 20 points on eight field goals and four free throws. Rich McCrary and Kevin Aboot each had eight points and Yogi Guitterez added nine.

John Deignan again paced the losers with 14 points, 10 of them coming in the third quarter.

Fremont took a 17-12 first quarter lead and held a steady lead throughout the contest.

Yob standout in SR golf tourney

More than 100 people participated in the East Bay Appliance Dealers' Golf Tournament last week at San Ramon National Golf Course.

Mark Yob won the Field low gross trophy in the championship flight. Bill Lau captured the First Low Gross trophy in the same division. John Bunch took the second low gross trophy and Ron Pelo the third low gross trophy.

In Fun Flight competition Grandy Cosper captured the Field Low net trophy. Ray Johnson won the First low net trophy and Frank Lowery took the second low net award.

In Special Hole in One competition Bob Robinson captured the first place award.

There were several Longest Drive and Longest Putt events.

D. Perelli captured one Longest Putt trophy while Lee Updegraff won the section two Longest Putt competiton.

Bob Norton and Gary Molan tied for one Longest Drive award while Bill Daily captured the other section.

Rip Collins won another Hole-In-One contest.

A&W hangs on for Minor Division title

A&W Root Beer jumped off to a 3-0 lead and held on for a 12-11 victory over Family Tree Boutique to take the Minor Division championship of Livermore National's Little League.

Frankie Carlucci had two hits (one home run) and three RBI's to spark the winners. Kenny Jewell, Char Conaway and Ray McNeil each had one hit for the victors.

Rod Hunter had two doubles for Family Tree. Tim Romanowski, Brian Mendoza and Wade Hardwick each had one single.

Conaway was the winning hurler and Hardwick took the defeat.

Danny Shay made a great catch in centerfield for the winners.

David Hall, Greg Rugles, Tim Dry, Brian Mendoza, Lance Constable, Tim Romanowski, Neau Casserly, Rod Hunter, Harwick, Larry Ellwangers and Mitch Derrich for Family Tree.

Mike Rochin, Ray McNeil, John Mottashed, Dino Caraveo, Matthew Mailander, Eric Hunt, Dennis Bethard, Frank Carlucci, Danny Shaw, Conaway and Wes Williamson each played well for the winners.

Pools scores in bunches

American Pools scored 11 times in the third and seven in the fourth inning en route to an easy 20-5 romp over 2RD's in Livermore Area Recreation Women's C League Softball action recently.

Sheryl Huce and Dorothy Bowstn each had two hits to spark the winners.

RD's led 4-2 after two innings but then the roof fell in on it.

In American Pool's half of the third Denna Ventura singled to open the inning. Two straight errors, a single by Jill Buice and another error scored three runs. RD's went on to make four more errors in the stanza. Bonniw Lemars provided the big blow of the inning with a home run.

Five more RD's errors helped American score its runs in the fourth stanza.

Karen McGehee, Brenda Lopez and Dorothy Baumgartner each had two hits for the losers.

In a much closer battle Ror Monk's Insurance edged past Mutual Service Ins ance 8-7 with two runs in the sixth stanza.

After two batters were out in the Monks' sixth Judy Tang tripled and scored on Jean Myers' single. Two erros by the Mutual Service shortstop brought in Myers with the winning tally.

Although she didn't score Ann McKay led the winners with three hits. Lynn Benbam added a triple for Ron Monks'.

Marlene Grazaga led the Mutual Service attack with two singles. Jessica Wasson, Barbara Correa, Linda Richards and Elizabeth Farfan each scored once and had one single for the losers.

Carrigan's bat leads Matador route, 11-3

Phil Carrigan belted a home run and two other hits in leading Matador Lounge past Kavanagh Liquors, 11-3 in Livermore Area Men's Recreation softball action.

Carrigan slammed his home run with two men on in the third inning to give Matador Lounge a 4-2 lead. He also had a double in the fifth and a single in the seventh.

Dan McDonald added another home run for the winners in the fifth. He had a double in the third inning.

Kavanagh Liquors jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first stanza on Glenn Fuller's two-run home run with Jerry Girard on base. Girard singled to reach first.

However, the losers could only get one more run, that coming in the fifth on a double by Girard and singles by Dave Owen and Jim Kasamuri.

Girard led the Kavanagh's attack with three hits.

Nazarene Church rolled to any easy 21-8 victory over Sadler & Turner in another game.

Joe Momano belted a home run and single to lead the winners. Neil Lanor also had a home run.

Sadler scored six of its runs in the sixth stanza with Bob Rauch's triple the big blast. Singles by Tim Jenkins, Ted Nelson and Bob Williams aided the belated rally.

Jenkins led the losers with four hits.

Ernies' Liquors-Godfathers and the O-Zones fought to an 11-11 draw.

The O-Zones scored seven times in the fourth to take a 7-1 lead. Andy Lewis and Dan Duke each had homers to spark the rally.

But Ernie's came back to scored three times in the sixth, four times in the seventh and three in the eighth to knot the score.

Bob Berger had a home run and two singles to lead Ernie's. Steve Nichols added two singles and a double and Fred Suto and Steve Oxen each had two hits.

Lewis and Tom Pierce each had three hits to lead the O-Zones. Gregg Behr added two doubles. Gar Eagan had a double and single.

In high hurdles

Gangnuss All-NorCal

Chuck Gangnuss of Dublin High School was the only East Bay Athletic League athlete named to the 1977 Citizens Savings' Athletic Foundation All-Northern California Track and Field team.

He was selected for his fourth place finish in the 120-yard high hurdles at the state meet. He had a best of 14.1 in that event. He also finished fifth in the 330-yard lows at the state meet.

Mark Stillman of Willow Glen of San Jose was named Boys' Athletic of the Year. He won the mile at state in 4:06.9.

Ann Regan of Camden (San Jose) and Linda Goen of North Bakersfield shared the Girls' Athlete of the Year award.

That pair finished 1-2 in the state meet 880, both of them beating the listed national record of 2:10.6.

Despite the fact that Gangnuss was one of three Northern California athletes to place in the 330-yard lows only one hurdler, Andre Phillips of Silver Creek of San Jose, was selected.

Phillips, also a fine high hurdler and high jumper, won the state title in the lows and had a personal best of 36.2 in that event this season. He has run the 330-yard intermediates in 37.1.

Phillips was one of three repeaters on the boys' team from 1976. The others were long jumper Kurt Durham of Oakland and pole vaulter Bill Pierce of Sanger. Durham was the only other Northern California boy to win at the state meet. He took the long jump with a 25¾ effort.

Girl repeaters included sprinter Freida Cobb of Berkeley, high jumper Candy Ross of Berkeley and Marquita Belk, 440 runner from Silver Creek.

NHL-WHA merge?

CHICAGO — The National Hockey League ended three struggling days of meetings Friday by proposing a merger with the World Hockey Association, effective with the coming 1977-78 season. The proposal will be put forth to surviving WHA teams and is expected to be accepted. It stipulates that the WHA form a separate division of no less than six teams and play under a National Hockey League umbrella.

For the coming season, the new division would play entirely within itself with its four top teams joining the top 12 teams in the NHL to play in an interlocking Stanley Cup format.

WHA teams expected to join the NHL are Quebec, New England, Cincinnati, Edmonton, Houston and Winnipeg. Birmingham also is a possibility.

Making the joint announcement of the proposed merger were NHL president-elect John Ziegler and R. Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL's Players Association.

After two days of separate and joint meetings between the owners and players, it appeared that there would be little or no chance of a merger.

Early Friday, the Board of Governors met and then called in the players' representatives. The player reps broke for a brief meeting and again joined the Board of Governors. Moments later the merger plan was announced.

Eagleson said the move had to be made before July 1; otherwise the WHA felt it would be shut out and would have to play the 1977-78 season as a separate league.

Pizza beats Realty

Round Table Pizza gained a 5-4 victory over Heritage Realty recently in Dublin Softball Association action.

Joe Lauer sparked the winners, belting two singles and drive in two runs.

Herb Tootie singled twice and doubled for Round Table Pizza. Pete Dayak and Glenn Black each added important run-scoring singles. Mike Lopez had a double and Ron Leiker added two singles.

Bill Vanderbyk paced the losers with two singles and a double. He also drove in two RBI's. Dan Kleier singled twice and drove in two more. Gary Horstkorta added two singles and Harv Hiner clubbed a double.

Portable Wash softball champs

Bills' Portable Wash smashed 20 hits in taking a 12-6 win over Amador Pharmacy and the first half championship of the B League in Women's softball action recently.

The Bills' finished with a 5-1 record.

Karen Elissondo had a triple and single for Portable Wash. Cookie Clark and Faye Ponce each collected three hits as did Erelyn Beck. Diane Colimbi added two singles.

Tommy had three hits for the losers.

Cheryle Hemann was the winning pitcher and Pat Rodriguez received the defeat.

As a result of the victory Bills' goes on to the A League.

Families on the move leave memories, debt

CHICAGO — More families than ever are on the move, and many of them leave their debts as well as their memories behind, according to a survey of members of the American Collectors Association, an international organization of 2,600 professional collection services.

More than one billion dollars in unpaid bills are abandoned each year by the 36 million Americans — nearly one - fifth of the families in the U.S. — who change residences annually, said John W. Johnson, executive vice president of ACA.

Sometimes the bills are forgotten by mistake and paid promptly once the debtor is located, Johnson said. But frequently the debtor is deliberately trying to "skip" out on his honest obligations, leaving them to be paid by the good - paying consumers through higher prices.

As a result, more than 500,000 skip accounts per month are turned over to professional collection services after creditors have failed in their own extensive locating efforts.

Retail, commercial, medical, government and business firms which extend credit all experience the bad debts which ultimately increase the cost of operations and raise the price of goods and services.

Skip accounts are just one aspect of the nearly 44 million new delinquent accounts which are listed with ACA members each year, according to participants in the Association's 38th annual convention at the Sheraton - Harbor Island Hotel in San Diego.

Eleven million bad checks are written each month. And more than 210,000 consumers totally erase their debts each year by declaring personal bankruptcy.

ACA members are not optimistic that this trend will go down with an improving economy. Consumer spending has reached near - record levels as personal income increases: consumer installment credit outstanding reached $182 billion in April, up more than 12 per cent from one year ago.

Though this spending is a major factor in the economic upturn, it also makes these consumers and their creditors more vulnerable to a sudden downturn or personal emergency which might make it difficult to meet these obligations.

Furthermore, professional collectors are citing a major attitude shift which makes debtors less inclined to pay their delinquent bills, regardless of their personal financial situation.

"It is no longer simply a question of whether a debtor can pay, but whether he wants to," Johnson said. "A major part of a collector's job is trying to persuade the debtor to meet his own responsibilities."

ACA members have stressed consumer education as a major thrust of the association, advising people on how to manage their money so they will not go into debt in the first place, and what to do if they do become delinquent in their payments.

The annual convention also advises collectors on the professional standards and ethical conduct appropriate to all professional collectors.

"Hopefully, we can help educate consumers, credit - grantors and legislators on the importance of good payment practices to the general health of the economy," Johnson said.

"Debt collection is a vital aspect of the success of our credit society, and a failure to make good these payments promises an harm every consumer through higher costs and tighter credit."

Closeout

The final closeout of Bridgepointe, the stylish Tamara community in Newark, is drawing homebuyers interested in the value and square footage of the bridge - side community. Designed and built by the Bren Company, the three and four bedroom homes are built on oversized lots with seeded front lawns and complete rear yard fencing. Individualized exteriors are accented by wooden siding, stucco and masonry. Bridgepointe's location makes commuting to Palo Alto and the Peninsula a 10-minute drive. Its proximity to to Highway 17 and BART makes East Bay commuting convient. To visit the models, take the Nimitz to the Jarvis exit in Newark, then west on Jarvis to the models. The homes start in the $80,000's.

Someone to mind the store when you go

How do you go about choosing someone to mind your house while you are on vacation? It's a question that has puzzled a lot of people.

Two categories of house sitters are available — sleep-in and live-in. Sleep-in sitters come and go, airing and feeding animals, watering plants and the like, and sleeping in your house at night. A live-in sitter will be at your house or apartment as if it were the sitters own abode.

Sleep-in sitters include short term sitters who may live close by and arrive with a minimum of personal effects. It upsets the household little as the sitter continues to use another home for meals and changes of clothing. The fee is based on the services required.

Live-in sitters will cook, use your closets and bureau drawers, and perhaps even use your car. You will need to make space for them as you would for a person to whom you are renting your home. That may be a big nuisance if your vacation is a short one, but on a long term basis, it works quite well. A lone sitter or a couple may have no other home, depending on house sitting jobs for a roof overhead. That type of professional sitter usually works without a fee. They enjoy moving about usually and will expect to entertain and live in your house as they might in their own home.

Choosing a house sitter

For short-term two week or one month vacations, a sleep-in sitter may work out best, particularly if the sitter is a neighbor. Some of the most reliable sleep-in sitters may be in the 18 to 25-year-old group, but unfortunately people often skip this group, unfairly assuming that all are liabilities because they are at the partying age. Responsible young sitters will observe ground rules — no entertaining, a limit on visitors, smoking rules, or whatever. Young people usually like animals and plants and are likely to have more patience than older people who might merely tolerate some of the house chores.

Senior citizens make good short-term sitters if you remember that not all older persons are blessed with built-in halos. You must provide ground rules for them, too.

A good source for finding sitters is the neighbors. Many people have relatives who would like to visit but the hindrance might be space and they can't afford a hotel. It's a freebie, usually if you can locate such a person or couple.

Local church societies might be consulted about house sitters, young and old. School students can be checked out, even if schools are closed in summer. A principal, teacher or guidance counselor would be happy, no doubt, to answer a telephone question. Or a note could be dropped to the school so that a letter might be forwarded to the proper person. Many schools have a career consultant who would be happy to help.

Unless you know the person well, you should check references. Local police might be queried about anyone you don't know. One family was thinking about hiring an 18-year-old boy to house-sit for them, only to find that he had been arrested meanwhile for breaking and entering a home.

What are your fears in leaving your home to someone else's care? You should resolve them for your own peace of mind. Fire? Theft? Accident? Install a smoke alarm, put precious things in a bank box, or store them with relatives or friends. Make sure you are properly insured to cover any accident that might occur to your temporary tenant.

Keeping rust out of home

That great enemy of metal — rust — is much easier to prevent than to stop once it has taken hold.

Rust or corrosion occurs when metal is exposed to the air. Since the corrosive effect is due primarily to the moisture content of the air, it follows that rust more quickly and more frequently attacks metal in areas of high humidity. Add pollutants in the air to the moisture and you have a particularly dangerous combination.

To halt the chemical reaction that produces rust, it is necessary to prevent air from touching the metal. That's why there are so many products on the market designed to provide metal with a protective coating. The most commonly used of these is paint. If every inch of a metal object is covered with paint, air cannot get to it and there is no rust. Yet we all have seen painted, outdoor metal furniture that is rusty. How did it get that way? Because, perhaps, a chair tipped over and developed a small scratch or break in the paint—a mar so tiny it may not have been noticed or, if someone did notice it, nothing was done about it.

That's how rust nearly always starts on metal that has been painted. The other way is when paint wears away over a period of time or chips or flakes on its own. Once there is an understanding that even a pinhole opening in the paint will permit enough air to reach the metal to cause rust, the likelihood is that periodic inspections will reveal a break in time to close it before corrosion takes effect.

When metal is painted, many persons skip the important first step — the use of a metal primer. It is the primer which acts to neutralize the spreading action of the rust should the topcoat of paint be nicked.

Once rust has gained headway, the corroded area should be scraped,

Contra Costa County Superior Court Judge Thomas F. McBride this week refused to order a halt to construction of a Danville residence (above) of Gene Kotz. Robert and Judy Kretz, also of Danville, had charged in a lawsuit that Kotz' home was a copy of their (below) residence. Also named in the suit were home builder Harold Smith and architect James Weber. Smith said following the judge's decision, "We have always maintained the houses are not "our actions have been proper and the suit is ridiculous. The Court, in refusing to stop construction, has given us the opportunity to complete the house and prove, as we have said from the start, that the houses are not identical and very different in many respects."

Answers for homeowners

Which metal for flashing?

Question — In buying flashing for certain places on my roof, is it necessary to stick to one kind of metal? A friend of mine says you can't put two different metal flashings on the same roof. I have some copper left over from another job, but the new metal I intend to buy is aluminum. Can I use them on the same roof? It's an asphalt shingle roof.

Answer — Your friend is right in the sense that different metals cannot be combined because of a corrosive process that takes place when this is done. But if you were to use copper flashing around a chimney, for instance, there is no use reason why you could not use another type of metal some other place on the roof.

Question — I read a magazine story in which a house builder was being interviewed. He referred several times to the overcoat of the house. What did he mean?

Answer — It's one of several terms that simply mean the exterior walls of a house. Another expression of this kind, the skin of a house, means the same thing.

Question — My grandfather, who used to be a cabinetmaker, keeps talking about the beautiful

Dean of realtors, Loren Mowrey dies

WALNUT CREEK — Loren G. Mowrey, often called the "dean of Board of Realtors executive officers in California," is dead at 59.

Mr. Mowrey, executive vice president of the Contra Costa Board of Realtors, suffered a massive heart attack Thursday morning in Palo Alto. He was attending a California Association of Realtors (CAR) Directors meeting at the Cabana Hotel.

According to A. Gordon Nicolson Jr., Board of Realtors president, Mr. Mowrey was in his room preparing to leave for a meeting when he suffered the heart attack. With Mr. Mowrey at the time of his death was Tom Murphy, staff vice president, governmental relations for the board. Murphy was formerly Mr. Mowrey's administrative assistant.

A memorial service is scheduled for Sunday at 2 p.m. The service will be held at the Lafayette - Orinda Presbyterian Church, 49 Knox Drive, Lafayette. Burial will be private.

Surviving Mr. Mowrey are his wife, Genny; son, Randy; daughter, Patti; and one grandchild.

Nicolson said, "The death of Loren Mowrey is a tremendous loss to the real estate industry not only in Contra Costa and Alameda counties, but also the state."

The board president said, "I have lost a great personal friend. Loren Mowrey gave me guidance that allowed me to become the president of the Contra Costa Board of Realtors.

"He was known throughout the state as the dean of executive officers in the California real estate industry." Nicolson said and added that Mr. Mowrey could justifiably be called "Mr. Real Estate in Contra Costa."

Nicolson said the board's executive officers met Thursday afternoon in Palo Alto and voted to set up a scholarship fund as a memorial to Mr. Mowrey.

The board's president commented, "The fund will be organized under CAR guidelines. I think CAR will also be setting up some type of scholarship program, but I know for sure we (CCBR) will have a fund.

"You know," he told The Times, "Loren was a great believer in real estate education. He taught real estate at Cal."

Nicolson said that out of respect to Mr. Mowrey, this morning's weekly general membership breakfast meeting will be canceled. But the board will remain open. "Loren would have wanted it that way," Nicolson added.

Orlon Obert, a personal friend of Mr. Mowrey and chairman of the board's building committee, told the staff at the board, Mr. Mowrey's death was the "saddest event of his life."

One of Mr. Mowrey's proudest achievements as executive vice president of the board was the construction of the group's modern and innovative headquarters building here.

Loren G. Mowrey

Mr. Mowrey became the executive vice president of the Contra Costa board in 1966 after being executive of the Oakland board and secretary - manager of the San Jose Real Estate Board.

Mr. Mowrey told The Times in an interview several years ago that his goals were to put the board on the right path financially and professionally and to build a new modern headquarters.

Under his leadership, the board has become one of the top five in the state with more than 3,000 members and has become known throughout the CAR organization as one of the most innovative in the state.

Answers for homeowners

finishes produced on wood with nothing more than linseed oil and turpentine. Is this kind of finish all he says it is?

Answer — Yes, if you have plenty of time and energy. There are several finishes of this type. All must be used on raw wood or wood from which the old finish has been removed. One calls for a half-and-half mixture of boiled linseed oil, turpentine another for equal parts of linseed oil, turpentine and spar varnish. The mixture is rubbed in, being especially carefull to rid the surface of all excess oil. It must then be rubbed vigorously every week or so for several months, after which it develops the kind of satin finish that wood ordinarily gets after many years of tender care. The sheen will last indefinitely, but may collect dust, so the surface must be wiped every now and then.

Question — I have never used shellac on a piece of furniture, but have experimented with it on scrap wood. It seems to come out all right, but now I have to know whether it must be sanded between coats, since I understand that several thin coats are much better than a single thick one. Also, can it be used on any kind of unfinished furniture?

Answer — Yes it should be sanded between coats, and yes, it can be used on any kind of unfinished furniture. The qualification on the furniture is that shellac is soluble in some liquids, so it is better to use it on pieces of furniture that will not be exposed to liquids. This does not mean that other finishes are not susceptible to damage from certain liquids, only that shellac is a bit more vulnerable.

How to fight rust

steel wooled, sanded or whatever is necessary to remove as much of it as possible. There are rust-removing preparations that will assist this action, but never overlook the importance of the preliminary cleaning moves.

In repainting metal which had been attacked by rust, which in turn was attacked by you, use one of the rust - inhibiting paints. Some are disigned as undercoats, some as final coats. And if you want obtain the most effective results from the product you are using, follow the label instructions to the letter.

Of course our new car was undercoated — you can see the stuff through the rust spots.

Kid we know flunked bagpacking at the market — he kept forgetting to put the eggs under the canned goods.

The reason so many things are never corrrected is that too many spend too much time finding out whose fault it was.

The day is coming when you won't be able to get sick from foodstuffs — everything edible will be banned.

Don't pave over your pool

Los Angeles (AP) — So you're the owner of one of the nation's estimated one million-plus swimming pools. Friend and neighbors who once hinted at an invitation for an afternoon dip now look askance at what seems an extravagance in these days of drought and energy shortages.

What are you going to do — pave it over? Not likely, especially since there are some far cheaper and more enticing alternatives.

The pool industry folk at the California Swimming Pool Energy, Codes and Legislative Council have come up with a series of suggestions to cut water use and heating costs without going to huge expense.

Tops on every list of recommendations is a pool cover. Not necessarily the heavy canvas type used in winter conditions when the pool is closed, but lightweight plastic bubbles or foam blankets that can let warmth in, keep dirt out

Mori on workman's comp flap

SACRAMENTO — Homewowners and renters who never intended to hire household help but were forced by law to purchase workers' compensation insurance will be aided by legislation introduced by Assemblyman Floyd Mori (D-Pleasanton).

"Anyone carrying a homeowner's policy is currently being charged additional premiums to cover workers' compensation for domestic employes," Mori said. "Yet how many of these people will actually hire on a steady basis?"

Mori said the legislation is needed because of a new law requiring all personal liability insurance policies to include liability coverage for domestic workers whether or not households employ anyone who could claim benefits.

"It isn't fair for people to be charged for policies they do not need. Therefore, I'm introducing legislation to give individuals the right to decline workers' compensation coverage if they don't employ anyone who could claim the benefits.

"The new law has put a hardship on many people — such as senior citizens on fixed incomes — who cannot afford to pay for a needless insurance coverage," Mori said.

"Extension of workers' compensation to household employes is certainly a welcome and needed reform for workers, but the costs of the insurance should be borne by the actual employers," he said.

Award winner

Linda Martell of Valley Realty in Livermore won the coveted "Salesperson of the month" award two months in succession. She has broken the record previously set by Valley Realty's Livermore office.

Linda handled 11 real estate transactions totaling almost a half million dollars. She takes pride in her profession and enjoys matching houses to people. Her background as an interior decorator enables her to recognize which features in a home will compliment the personalities of her clients.

She does not consider the extra service she renders as "work" because, to her, clients are so great to "serve."

Linda's family is proud of her accomplishments too.

Valley Realty sends congratulations to her husband Dick; son Mark; and daughters, Lisa and Lori.

Newcomer

Village Realty is proud to announce the addition to their staff of a new Realtor-Associate, Diane Wiedel.

Diane, her husband Chuck, and their four children have resided in Pleasanton for over five years. She has been very active in volunteer work including Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, tutoring at Walnut Grove and Harvest Park Schools and holding several Board positions in the Home and School Club. She is also involved in music activities at Harvest Park and Amador High Schools.

Diane attended the University of San Francisco, where she majored in nursing and has recently been attending Chabot College. She has an avid interest in collecting and refinishing antiques. Her helpful, friendly attitude is immediately evident and she looks forward to finding the "right home" for each of her clients.

State realtor official retires after 24 years

One of the Department of Real Estate's top administrators retired June 22 after more than 24 years of service.

Gerald E. Harrington, Assistant Commissioner, headed the Transaction Activities Division, one of four divisions within the department. This division includes over 65 per cent of the department's personnel working in such functions as licensing, examinations, and enforcement located in all five district offices and the headquarters office in Sacramento.

"Jerry" is a graduate of the University of Southern California and served in the United States Air Force leaving with the rank of Captain. He was also experienced as a real estate broker and escrow officer prior to joining the department in 1953 as an investigative deputy in Los Angeles. Progression was rapid to Deputy-in-Charge of the Sacramento office and soon after to Senior Examination Deputy, Sacramento. By 1957 he was promoted to Supervising Deputy-in-Charge of the Los Angeles Office and two years later to Assistant Commissioner of the Southern California area.

A reorganization of the then Division of Real Estate in 1964 caused the creation of a new position titled Assistant Commissioner, Regulatory Operations which was filled by Harrington. Since then, at various times over the years, he had responsibilities as Assistant Commissioner over virtually every aspect of departmental operations including education, administration, budgeting, accounting, licensing, examinations, publications and enforcement. He was widely known throughout the real estate industry during his years with the department.

Retirement for Jerry and his wife, Ruth, will be in a new home recently built to their own specifications. Both the Department and the real estate industry extend best wishes in all future plans.

Tips to save water, energy with a pool and reduce evaporation which experts say can run 600 gallons a week, depending on such factors as pool size, location, air and water temperatures.

The combination of a cover, which costs between $50 and $500 and some common sense, like keeping down the kids splashing, can easily cut that evaporation in half, experts say.

Covers can also help pools retain warmth overnight. Heating costs can be trimmed 50 percent or much more in some cases, manufactors say, based on the type of blanket and when it's used.

Next in importance is turning the thermostat down. The American Red Cross considers 78 degrees the healthiest swimming temperature but a goodly number of pools are tuned to 82 degrees. Industry experts say those extra four degrees can use as much as 40 per cent more of that expensive natural gas.

To further reduce heating costs, shorten the period of months the pool is heated, eliminating the cool early spring and chilly autumn periods when large gulps of gas are needed to keep water comfortable.

Thermostats on pools used only on weekends should be turned down eight or ten degrees and then hiked back up Friday. You can also save by turning off the pilot light when the heater isn't in use.

A major saving in electricity — 40 to 50 per cent a year — can come from severly shortening the time pool filters are run. Many operate 10 to 12 hours a day but the industry says four or five hours is sufficient for most pools. If that doesn't keep the water fresh, increase the daily time by a half-hour until clarity is restored.

With summer power shortages looming, utilities are requesting that pool owners avoid running pumps and filters during the peak 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. power demand period. Break up the flitering into two to three-hour periods in the morning and early evening.

Other suggestions include sheltering the pool from breezes which increase evaporation and eliminating spraying and splashing from water inlets and pool sweeps.

Also recommended is a thorough check by a maintenance specialist — industry estimated cost $50 to $100 plus repairs — to insure the system is without the sort of minor problems that can add up to a noticeable loss of efficiency

For those thinking about draining pools for the drought — not only can they be dangerous holes but that chemifilled water, largely useless elsewhere, is a major factor in keeping the plaster walls from collapsing.

Efficient Bug

The average lightbulb doesn't hold a candle to the firefly. A good bulb converts only about 10 percent of its energy into light, wasting the rest as heat. A firefly operates its lamp without heat at better than 95 per cent efficiency.

EVERY APPEARANCE COUNTS

Without the regular appearance of the little bird, attracting attention and calling out the hour, a cuckoo clock would lose its effectivelenss. Every appearance also counts when you're advertising something for sale. You can increase the effectiveness of your advertising message by placing it where it will attract the most attention . . . in the Classified section of the Times.
